The third Part of Henry the Sixt, with the death of the Duke of YORKE.

Actus Primus. Scena Prima.

Alarum.

Enter Plantagenet, Edward, Richard, Norfolke, Mount ague, Warwicke, and Souldiers.

rem

remWarwicke.

I Wonder how the King escap'd our hands?

rem

remPl.

while we pursu'd the Horsmen of the¹ North,

He slyly stole away, and left his men:

Whereat the great Lord of Northumberland,

Whose Warlike eares could neuer brooke retreat,

Chear'd vp the drouping Army, and himselfe.

Lord Clifford and Lord Stafford all a-brest

Charg'd our maine Battailes Front: and breaking in,

Were by the Swords of common Souldiers slaine.

rem

remEdw.

¹y

*Lord Staffords Father, Duke of Buckingham,
Is either slaine or wounded dangerous.
I cleft his Beauer with a down-right blow:
That this is true (Father) behold his blood.*

rem

remMount.

And Brother, here's the Earle of Wiltshires (blood, Whom I encountred as the Battels ioyn'd.

rem

remRich.

Speake thou for me, and tell them what I did.

rem

remPlan.

*Richard hath best deseru'd of all my sonnes:
But is your Grace dead, my Lord of Somerset?*

rem

remNor.

Such hope haue all the line of Iohn of Gaunt.

rem

remRich.

Thus do I hope to shake King Henries head.

rem

remWarw.

And so doe I, victorious Prince of Yorke.

*Before I see thee seated in that Throne,
Which now the House of Lancaster vsurpes,
I vow by Heauen, these eyes shall neuer close.
This is the Pallace of the fearefull King,
And this the Regall Seat: possesse it Yorke,
For this is thine, and not King Henries Heires.*

remPlant.

Assist me then, sweet Warwick, and I will,

For hither we haue broken in by force.

remNorf.

Wee'le all assist you: he that flyes, shall dye.

rem

remPlant.

*Thankes gentle Norfolke, stay by me my Lords,
And Souldiers stay and lodge by me this Night.*

They goe vp.

rem

remWarw.

And when the King comes, offer him no violence, Vnlesse he seeke to thrust you out perforce.

rem

remPlant.

*The Queene this day here holds her Parliament,
But little thinkes we shall be of her counsaile,
By words or blowes here let vs winne our right.*

rem

remRich.

Arm'd as we are, let's stay within this House.

rem

remWarw.

*The bloody Parliament shall this be call'd, Vnlesse Plantagenet, Duke of Yorke, be King,
And bashfull Henry depos'd, whose Cowardize Hath made vs by-words to our enemies.*

rem

remPlant.

*Then leaue me not, my Lords be resolute,
I meane to take possession of my Right.*

rem

remWarw.

*Neither the King, nor he that loues him best,
The proudest hee that holds vp Lancaster, Dares stirre a Wing, if Warwick shake his Bells.
Ile plant Plantagenet, root him vp who dares: Resolue thee Richard, clayme the English Crowne.*

Flourish. Enter King Henry, Clifford, Northumberland, Westmerland, Exeter, and the rest.

rem

remHenry.

*My Lords, looke where the sturdie Rebell sits,
Euen in the Chayre of State: belike he meanes,
Backt by the power of Warwicke, that false Peere,
To aspire vnto the Crowne, and reigne as King.
Earle of Northumberland, he slew thy Father,
And thine, Lord Clifford, & you both haue vow'd reuenge
On him, his sonnes, his fauorites, and his friends.*

remNorthumb.

If I be not, Heauens be reueng'd on me.

rem

remClifford.

The hope thereof, makes Clifford mourne in Steele.

rem

remWestm.

What, shall we suffer this? lets pluck him down,

My heart for anger burnes, I cannot brooke it.

rem

remHenry.

Be patient, gentle Earle of Westmerland.

rem

remClifford.

Patience is for Poultroones, such as he:

He durst not sit there, had your Father liu'd.

My gracious Lord, here in the Parliament

Let vs assayle the Family of Yorke.

remNorth.

Well hast thou spoken, Cousin be it so.

rem

remHenry.

Ah, know you not the Citie fauours them,

And they haue troupes of Souldiers at their beck?

remWestm.

But when the Duke is slaine, they'le quickly flye.

remHenry.

Farre be the thought of this from Henries heart,

To make a Shambles of the Parliament House.

Cousin of Exeter, frownes, words, and threats,

Shall be the Warre that Henry meanes to use.

Thou factious Duke of Yorke descend my Throne,

And kneele for grace and mercie at my feet,

I am thy Soueraigne.

remYorke.

I am thine.

rem

remExet.

For shame come downe, he made thee Duke of Yorke.

rem

remYorke.

It was my Inheritance, as the Earledome was.

rem

remExet.

Thy Father was a Traytor to the Crowne.

rem

remWarw.

Exeter thou art a Traytor to the Crowne,

In following this usurping Henry.

remClifford.

Whom should hee follow, but his naturall King?

rem

remWarw.

True Clifford, that's Richard Duke of Yorke.

remHenry.

And shall I stand, and thou sit in my Throne?

rem

remYorke.

It must and shall be so, content thy selfe.

rem

remWarw.

Be Duke of Lancaster, let him be King.

remWestm.

He is both King, and Duke of Lancaster,

And that the Lord of Westmerland shall maintaine.

rem

remWarw.

And Warwick shall disproue it. You forget,

That we are those which chas'd you from the field,

And slew your Fathers, and with Colours spread

Marcht through the Citie to the Pallace Gates.

remNorthumb.

Yes Warwicke, I remember it to my grieffe,

And by his Soule, thou and thy House shall rue it.

remWestm.

Piantagenet, of thee and these thy Sonnes,

Thy Kinsmen, and thy Friends, Ile haue more liues

Then drops of bloud were in my Fathers Veines.

remCliff.

Vrge it no more, lest that in stead of words,

I send thee, Warwicke, such a Messenger,

As shall reuenge his death, before I stirre.

rem

remWarw.

Poore Cliffford, how I scorne his worthlesse Threats.

rem

remPlant.

Will you we shew our Title to the Crowne?

If not, our Swords shall pleade it in the field.

remHenry.

What Title hast thou Traytor to the Crowne?

My Father was as thou art, Duke of Yorke,

Thy Grandfather Roger Mortimer, Earle of March.

I am the Sonne of Henry the Fift,

Who made the Dolphin and the French to stoupe,

And seiz'd vpon their Townes and Prouinces.

rem

remWarw.

Talke not of France, sith thou hast lost it all.

remHenry.

The Lord Protector lost it, and not I:

When I was crown'd, I was but nine moneths old.

rem

remRich.

You are old enough now,

And yet me thinkes you loose:

Father teare the Crowne from the Vsurpers Head.

remEdward.

Sweet Father doe so, set it on your Head.

rem

remMount.

Good Brother,

As thou lou'st and honorest Armes,

Let's fight it out, and not stand cauilling thus.

remRichard.

Sound Drummes and Trumpets, and the King will flye.

rem

remPlant.

Sonnes peace.

remHenry.

Peace thou, and giue King Henry leaue to speake.

rem

remWarw.

*Plantagenet shal speake first: Heare him Lords,
And be you silent and attentiu too,
For he that interrupts him, shall not liue.*

rem

remHen.

*Think'st thou, that I will leaue my Kingly Throne, Wherein my Grandsire and my Father sat?
No: first shall Warre vnpeople this my Realme;
I, and their Colours often borne in France,
And now in England, to our hearts great sorrow,
Shall be my Winding-sheet. Why faint you Lords?
My Title's good, and better farre then his.*

rem

remWarw.

Proue it Henry, and thou shalt be King.

rem

remHen.

Henry the Fourth by Conquest got the Crowne.

rem

remPlant.

'Twas by Rebellion against his King.

rem

remHenry.

I know not what to say, my Titles weake:

Tell me, may not a King adopt an Heire?

remPlant.

What then?

remHenry.

And if he may, then am I lawfull King:

For Richard, in the view of many Lords,

Resign'd the Crowne to Henry the Fourth,

Whose Heire my Father was, and I am his.

remPlant.

He rose against him, being his Soueraigne,

And made him to resigne his Crowne perforce.

rem

remWarw.

Suppose, my Lords, he did it vnconstrayn'd,

Thinke you 'twere preiudiciall to his Crowne?

remExet.

No: for he could not so resigne his Crowne,
But that the next Heire should succeed and reigne.

remHenry.

Art thou against vs, Duke of Exeter?

rem

remExet.

His is the right, and therefore pardon me.

rem

remPlant.

Why whisper you, my Lords, and answer not?

rem

remExet.

My Conscience tells me he is lawfull King.

rem

remHenry.

All will reuolt from me, and turne to him.

rem

remNorthumb.

Plantagenet, for all the Clayme thou lay'st, Thinke not, that Henry shall be so depos'd.

rem

remWarw.

Depos'd he shall be, in despight of all.

rem

remNorthumb.

Thou art deceiu'd:

'Tis not thy Southerne power

Of Essex, Norfolke, Suffolke, nor of Kent,

Which makes thee thus presumptuous and proud,

Can set the Duke vp in despight of me.

rem

remClifford.

King Henry, be thy Title right or wrong,

Lord Clifford vowes to fight in thy defence:

May that ground gape, and swallow me aliue,

Where I shall kneele to him that slew my Father.

rem

remHenry.

Oh Clifford, how thy words reuiue my heart.

rem

remPlant.

Henry of Lancaster, resigne thy Crowne:

What mutter you, or what conspire you Lords?

rem

remWarw.

*Doe right vnto this Princely Duke of Yorke,
Or I will fill the House with armed men,
And ouer the Chayre of state, where now he sits,
Write vp his Title with vsurping blood.*

He stampes with his foot, and the Souldiers shew themselues.

rem

remHenry.

*My Lord of Warwick, heare but one word,
Let me for this my life time reigne as King.*

rem

remPlant.

*Confirme the Crowne to me and to mine Heires,
And thou shalt reigne in quiet while thou liu'st.*

rem

remHenry.

I am content: Richard Plantagenet Enioy the Kingdome after my decease.

rem

remClifford.

What wrong is this vnto the Prince, your Sonne?

rem

remWarw.

What good is this to England, and himselfe?

rem

remWestm.

Base, fearefull, and despayring Henry.

rem

remClifford.

How hast thou iniur'd both thy selfe and vs?

rem

remWestm.

I cannot stay to heare these Articles.

rem

remNorthumb.

Nor I.

rem

remClifford.

Come Cousin, let vs tell the Queene these Newes.

rem

remWestm.

Farwell faint-hearted and degenerate King,

In whose cold blood no sparke of Honor bides.

rem

remNorthumb.

Be thou a prey vnto the House of Yorke,
And dye in Bands, for this vnmanly deed.
rem
remCliff.
In dreadfull Warre may'st thou be ouercome,
Or liue in peace abandon'd and despis'd.
rem
remWarw.
Turne this way Henry, and regard them not.
rem
remExeter.
They seeke reuenge, and therefore will not yeeld.
rem
remHenry.
Ah Exeter.
rem
remWarw.
Why should you sigh, my Lord?
rem
remHenry.
Not for my selfe Lord Warwick, but my Sonne,
Whom I vnnaturally shall dis-inherite.
But be it as it may: I here entayle
The Crowne to thee and to thine Heires for euer, Conditionally, that heere thou take an Oath,
To cease this Ciuill Warre: and whil'st I liue,
To honor me as thy King, and Soueraigne:
And neyther by Treason nor Hostilitie,
To seeke to put me downe, and reigne thy selfe.
rem
remPlant.
This Oath I willingly take, and will performe.
rem
remWarw.
Long liue King Henry: Plantagenet embrace him.
rem
remHenry.
And long liue thou, and these thy forward Sonnes.
rem
remPlant.
Now Yorke and Lancaster are reconcil'd.
rem
remExet.

Accurst be he that seekes to make them foes.

Senet. Here they come downe.

rem

remPlant.

Farewell my gracious Lord, Ile to my Castle.

rem

remWarw.

And Ile keepe London with my Souldiers.

rem

remNorf.

And I to Norfolke with my follower1.

rem

remMount.

And I vnto the Sea, from whence I came.

rem

remHenry.

And I with grieffe and sorrow to the Court.

Enter the Queene.

remExeter.

Heere comes the Queene,

Whose Lookes bewray her anger:

Ile steale away.

rem

remHenry.

Exeter so will I.

rem

remQueene.

Nay, goe not from me, I will follow thee.

rem

remHenry.

Be patient gentle Queene, and I will stay.

rem

remQueene.

Who can be patient in such extreames?

Ah wretched man, would I had dy'de a Maid?

And neuer seene thee, neuer borne thee Sonne,

Seeing thou hast prou'd so vnnaturall a Father.

Hath he deseru'd to loose his Birth-right thus?

Hadst thou but lou'd him halfe so well as I,

Or felt that paine which I did for him once,

Or nourisht him, as I did with my blood;

Thou would'st haue left thy dearest heart-blood there,

*Rather then haue made that sauage Duke thine Heire,
And dis-inherited thine onely Sonne.*

rem

remPrince.

Father, you cannot dis-inherite me:

If you be King, why should not I succede?

rem

remHenry.

Pardon me Margaret, pardon me sweet Sonne,

The Earle of Warwick and the Duke enforc't me.

rem

remQuee.

Enforc't thee? Art thou King, and wilt be forc't?

I shame to heare thee speake: ah timorous Wretch,

Thou hast vndone thy selfe, thy Sonne, and me,

And giu'n vnto the House of Yorke such head,

As thou shalt reigne but by their sufferance.

To entayle him and his Heires vnto the Crowne,

What is it, but to make thy Sepulcher,

And creepe into it farre before thy time?

Warwick is Chancelor, and the Lord of Callice,

Sterne Falconbridge commands the Narrow Seas,

The Duke is made Protector of the Realme,

And yet shalt thou be safe? Such safetie findes

The trembling Lambe, inuironned with Wolues.

Had I beene there, which am a silly Woman,

The Souldiers should haue toss'd me on their Pikes,

Before I would haue granted to that Act.

But thou preferr'st thy Life, before thine Honor.

And seeing thou do'st, I here diuorce my selfe,

Both from thy Table Henry, and thy Bed,

Vntill that Act of Parliament be repeal'd,

Whereby my Sonne is dis-inherited.

The Northerne Lords, that haue forsworne thy Colours,

Will follow mine, if once they see them spread:

And spread they shall be, to thy foule disgrace,

And utter ruine of the House of Yorke.

Thus doe I leaue thee: Come Sonne, let's away,

Our Army is ready; come, wee'le after them.

rem

remHenry.

Stay gentle Margaret, and heare me speake.

rem

remQueene.

Thou hast spoke too much already: get thee gone.

rem

remHenry.

Gentle Sonne Edward, thou wilt stay me?

rem

remQueene.

I, to be murther'd by his Enemies.

rem

remPrince.

When I returne with victorie to the field,

Ile see your Grace: till then, Ile follow her.

rem

remQueene.

Come Sonne away, we may not linger thus.

rem

remHenry.

Poore Queene,

How loue to me, and to her Sonne,

Hath made her breake out into termes of Rage.

Reueng'd may she be on that hatefull Duke,

Whose haughtie spirit, winged with desire,

Will cost my Crowne, and like an emptie Eagle,

Tyre on the flesh of me, and of my Sonne.

The losse of those three Lords torments my heart:

Ile write vnto them, and entreat them faire;

Come Cousin, you shall be the Messenger.

rem

remExet.

And I, I hope, shall reconcile them all.

Exit.

Flourish. Enter Richard, Edward, and Mountague.

rem

remRichard.

Brother, though I bee youngest, giue mee leaue.

rem

remEdward.

No, I can better play the Orator.

rem

remMount.

But I haue reasons strong and forceable.

Enter the Duke of Yorke.

rem

remYorke.

Why how now Sonnes, and Brother, at a strife?

What is your Quarrell? how began it first?

rem

remEdward.

No Quarrell, but a slight Contention.

rem

remYorke.

About what?

rem

remRich.

About that which concernes your Grace and vs,

The Crowne of England, Father, which is yours.

rem

remYorke.

Mine Boy? not till King Henry be dead.

rem

remRichard.

Your Right depends not on his life, or death.

rem

remEdward.

Now you are Heire, therefore enioy it now:

By giuing the House of Lancaster leaue to breathe,

It will out-runne you, Father, in the end.

rem

remYorke.

I tooke an Oath, that hee should quietly reigne.

rem

remEdward.

But for a Kingdome any Oath may be broken:

I would breake a thousand Oathes, to reigne one yeere.

rem

remRichard.

No: God forbid your Grace should be for sworne.

rem

remYorke.

I shall be, if I clayme by open Warre.

rem

remRichard.

Ile proue the contrary, if you'le heare mee speake.

rem

remYorke.

Thou canst not, Sonne: it is impossible.

rem

remRichard.

*An Oath is of no moment, being not tooke
 Before a true and lawfull Magistrate,
 That hath authoritie ouer him that sweares.
 Henry had none, but did vsurpe the place.
 Then seeing 'twas he that made you to depose,
 Your Oath, my Lord, is vaine and friuolous.
 Therefore to Armes: and Father doe but thinke,
 How sweet a thing it is to weare a Crowne,
 Within whose Circuit is Elizium,
 And all that Poets faine of Blisse and Ioy.
 Why doe we linger thus? I cannot rest,
 Vntill the White Rose that I weare, be dy'de Euen in the luke-warme blood of Henries heart.*

rem

remYorke.

*Richard ynough: I will be King, or dye.
 Brother, thou shalt to London presently,
 And whet on Warwick to this Enterprise.
 Thou Richard shalt to the Duke of Norfolke,
 And tell him priuily of our intent.
 You Edward shall vnto my Lord Cobham,
 With whom the Kentishmen will willingly rise.
 In them I trust: for they are Souldiors,
 Wittie, courteous, liberall, full of spirit.
 While you are thus imploy'd, what resteth more?
 But that I seeke occasion how to rise,
 And yet the King not priuie to my Drift,
 Nor any of the House of Lancaster.*

Enter Gabriel.

But stay, what Newes? Why comm'st thou in such poste?

rem

remGabriel.

*The Queene,
 With all the Northerne Earles and Lords,
 Intend here to besiege you in your Castle.
 She is hard by, with twentie thousand men:
 And therefore fortifie your Hold, my Lord.*

rem
remYorke.

I, with my Sword.

What? think'st thou, that we feare them?
Edward and Richard, you shall stay with me,
My Brother Mountague shall poste to London.
Let Noble Warwicke, Cobham, and the rest,
Whom we haue left Protectors of the King,
With powrefull Pollicie strengthen themselues,
And trust not simple Henry, nor his Oathes.

rem
remMount.

Brother, I goe: Ile winne them, feare it not.

And thus most humbly I doe take my leaue.

Exit Mountague.

Enter Mortimer, and his Brother.

rem
remYorke.

Sir Iohn, and Sir Hugh Mortimer, mine Vnckles,

You are come to Sandall in a happie houre.

The Armie of the Queene meane to besiege vs.

rem
remIohn.

Shee shall not neede, wee'le meete her in the field.

rem
remYorke.

What, with fiae thousand men?

rem
remRichard.

I, with fiae hundred, Father, for a neede.

A Woman's generall: what should we feare?

A March afarre off.

rem
remEdward.

I heare their Drummes:

Let's set our men in order,

And issue forth, and bid them Battaile straight.

rem
remYorke.

Fiae men to twentie: though the oddes be great,

I doubt not, Vnckle, of our Victorie.

*Many a Battaile haue I wonne in France,
When as the Enemie hath beene tenne to one:
Why should I not now haue the like successe?*

Alarum. Exit.

Enter Rutland, and his Tutor.

rem

remRutland.

*Ah, whither shall I flye, to scape their hands?
Ah Tutor, looke where bloody Clifford comes.*

Enter Clifford.

rem

remClifford.

*Chaplainne away, thy Priesthood saues thy life.
As for the Brat of this accursed Duke, Whose Father slew my Father, he shall dye.*

rem

remTutor.

And I, my Lord, will beare him company.

rem

remClifford.

Souldiers, away with him.

rem

remTutor.

Ah Clifford, murther not this innocent Child, Least thou be hated both of God and Man.

Exit.

rem

remClifford.

*How now? is he dead alreadie?
Or is it feare, that makes him close his eyes?
Ile open them.*

rem

remRutland.

*So looks the pent-yp Lyon o're the Wretch,
That trembles vnder his deuouring Pawes:
And so he walkes, insulting o're his Prey,
And so he comes, to rend his Limbes asunder.
Ah gentle Clifford, kill me with thy Sword,
And not with such a cruell threatning Looke.
Sweet Clifford heare me speake, before I dye:*

*I am too meane a subiect for thy Wrath,
Be thou reueng'd on men, and let me liue.*

rem

remClifford.

In vaine thou speak'st, poore Boy:

*My Fathers blood hath stopt the passage
Where thy words should enter.*

rem

remRutland.

Then let my Fathers blood open it againe,

He is a man, and Clifford cope with him.

rem

remClifford.

Had I thy Brethren here, their liues and thine

Were not reuenge sufficient for me:

*No, if I digg'd vp thy fore-fathers Graues,
And hung their rotten Coffins vp in Chaynes,
It could not slake mine ire, nor ease my heart.*

The sight of any of the House of Yorke,

Is as a furie to torment my Soule:

And till I root out their accursed Line,

And leaue not one aliue, I liue in Hell.

Therefore---

rem

remRutland.

Oh let me pray, before I take my death:

To thee I pray; sweet Clifford pittie me.

rem

remClifford.

Such pittie as my Rapiers point affords.

rem

remRutland.

I neuer did thee harme: why wilt thou slay me?

rem

remClifford.

Thy Father hath.

rem

remRutland.

But 'twas ere I was borne.

Thou hast one Sonne, for his sake pittie me,

Least in reuenge thereof, sith God is iust,

He be as miserably slaine as I.

Ah, let me liue in Prison all my dayes,

*And when I giue occasion of offence,
Then let me dye, for now thou hast no cause.*

rem

remClifford.

No cause? thy Father slew my Father: there fore dye.

rem

remRutland.

Dis faciant laudis summa sit ista tuæ.

rem

remClifford.

Plantagenet, I come Plantagenet:

*And this thy Sonnes blood cleauing to my Blade, Shall rust vpon my Weapon, till thy blood
Congeal'd with this, doe make me wipe off both.*

Exit.

Alarum. Enter Richard, Duke of Yorke.

rem

remYorke.

The Army of the Queene hath got the field:

*My Vnckles both are slaine, in rescuing me;
And all my followers, to the eager foe
Turne back, and flye, like Ships before the Winde,
Or Lambes pursu'd by hunger-starued Wolues.
My Sonnes, God knowes what hath bechanced them:
But this I know, they haue demean'd themselues
Like men borne to Renowne, by Life or Death.
Three times did Richard make a Lane to me,
And thrice cry'de, Courage Father, fight it out:
And full as oft came Edward to my side,
With Purple Faulchion, painted to the Hilt,
In blood of those that had encountred him:
And when the hardyest Warriors did retyre,
Richard cry'de, Charge, and giue no foot of ground,
And cry'de, A Crowne, or else a glorious Tombe,
A Scepter, or an Earthly Sepulchre.
With this we charg'd againe: but out alas,
We bodg'd againe, as I haue seene a Swan
With bootlesse labour swimme against the Tyde,
And spend her strength with ouer-matching Waues.*

A short Alarum within.

*Ah hearke, the fatall followers doe pursue,
And I am faint, and cannot flye their furie:
And were I strong, I would not shunne their furie.
The Sands are numbred, that makes vp my Life,
Here must I stay, and here my Life must end.*

Enter the Queene, Clifford, Northumberland, the young Prince, and Souldiers.

*Come bloody Clifford, rough Northumberland,
I dare your quenchlesse furie to more rage;
I am your Butt, and I abide your Shot.*

rem

remNorthumb.

Yeeld to our mercy, proud Plantagenet.

rem

remClifford.

I, to such mercy, as his ruthlesse Arme

With downe-right payment, shew'd vnto my Father.

Now Phaeton hath tumbled from his Carre,

And made an Euening at the Noone-tide Prick.

rem

remYorke.

My ashes, as the Phœnix, may bring forth

A Bird, that will reuenge vpon you all:

And in that hope, I throw mine eyes to Heauen,

Scorning what ere you can afflict me with.

Why come you not? what, multitudes, and feare?

rem

remCliff.

So Cowards fight, when they can flye no further,

So Doves doe peck the Faulcons piercing Tallons,

So desperate Theeues, all hopelesse of their Liues,

Breathe out Inuectiues 'gainst the Officers.

rem

remYorke.

Oh Clifford, but bethinke thee once againe,

And in thy thought ore-run my former time:

And if thou canst, for blushing, view this face,

And bite thy tongue, that slanders him with Cowardice,

Whose frowne hath made thee faint and flye ere this.

rem

remClifford.

*I will not bandie with thee word for word,
But buckler with thee blowes twice two for one.*

rem

remQueene.

*Hold valiant Clifford, for a thousand causes
I would prolong a while the Traytors Life:
Wrath makes him deafe; speake thou Northumberland.*

rem

remNorthumb.

*Hold Clifford, doe not honor him so much,
To prick thy finger, though to wound his heart.
What valour were it, when a Curre doth grinne,
For one to thrust his Hand betweene his Teeth,
When he might spurne him with his Foot away?
It is Warres prize, to take all Vantages,
And tenne to one, is no impeach of Valour.*

rem

remClifford.

I, I, so striues the Woodcocke with the Gynne.

rem

remNorthumb.

So doth the Connie struggle in the Net.

rem

remYork.

*So triumph Theeues vpon their conquer'd Booty,
So True men yeeld with Robbers, so o're-matcht.*

rem

remNorthumb.

What would your Grace haue done vnto him now?

rem

remQueene.

*Braue Warriors, Clifford, and Northumberland, Come make him stand vpon this Mole-hill here,
That raught at Mountaines with out-stretched Armes,
Yet parted but the shadow with his Hand.
What, was it you that would be Englands King?
Was't you that reuell'd in our Parliament,
And made a Preachment of you high Descent?
Where are your Messe of Sonnes, to back you now?
This question mark type has slipped below the line.
The wanton Edward, and the lustie George?
And where's that valiant Crook-back Prodigie,*

*Dickie, your Boy, that with his grumbling voyce
 Was wont to cheare his Dad in Mutinies?
 Or with the rest, where is your Darling, Rutland?
 Looke Yorke, I stayn'd this Napkin with the blood
 That valiant Clifford, with his Rapiers point,
 Made issue from the Bosome of the Boy:
 And if thine eyes can water for his death,
 I giue thee this to drie thy Cheekes withall.
 Alas poore Yorke, but that I hate thee deadly,
 I should lament thy miserable state.
 I prythee grieue, to make me merry, Yorke.
 What, hath thy fierie heart so parcht thine entrayles,
 That not a Teare can fall, for Rutlands death?
 Why art thou patient, man? thou should'st be mad:
 And I, to make thee mad, doe mock thee thus.
 Stampe, raue, and fret, that I may sing and dance.
 Thou would'st be fee'd, I see, to make me sport:
 Yorke cannot speake, vnlesse he weare a Crowne.
 A Crowne for Yorke; and Lords, bow lowe to him:
 Hold you his hands, whilst I doe set it on.
 I marry Sir, now lookes he like a King:
 I, this is he that tooke King Henries Chaire,
 And this is he was his adopted Heire.
 But how is it, that great Plantagenet
 Is crown'd so soone, and broke his solemne Oath?
 As I bethinke me, you should not be King,
 Till our King Henry had shooke hands with Death.
 And will you pale your head in Henries Glory,
 And rob his Temples of the Diademe,
 Now in his Life, against your holy Oath?
 Oh 'tis a fault too too vnardonable.
 Off with the Crowne; and with the Crowne, his Head,
 And whilst we breathe, take time to doe him dead.*

rem

remClifford.

That is my Office, for my Fathers sake.

rem

remQueene.

Nay stay, let's heare the Orizons hee makes.

rem

rem Yorke.

Shee-Wolfe of France,

But worse then Wolues of France,

Whose Tongue more poysons then the Adders Tooth:

How ill-beseeming is it in thy Sex,

To triumph like an Amazonian Trull,

Vpon their Woes, whom Fortune captiuates?

But that thy Face is Vizard-like, vnchanging,

Made impudent with vse of euill deedes.

I would assay, proud Queene, to make thee blush.

To tell thee whence thou cam'st, of whom deriu'd,

Were shame enough, to shame thee,

Wert thou not shamelesse.

Thy Father beares the type of King of Naples,

Of both the Sicils, and Ierusalem,

Yet not so wealthie as an English Yeoman.

Hath that poore Monarch taught thee to insult?

It needes not, nor it bootes thee not, proud Queene,

Vnlesse the Adage must be verify'd,

That Beggers mounted, runne their Horse to death.

'Tis Beautie that doth oft make Women proud,

But God he knowes, thy share thereof is small.

'Tis Vertue, that doth make them most admir'd,

The contrary, doth make thee wondred at.

'Tis Gouernment that makes them seeme Diuine,

The want thereof, makes thee abhominable.

Thou art as opposite to euery good,

As the Antipodes are vnto vs,

Or as the South to the Septentrion.

Oh Tygres Heart, wrapt in a Womans Hide,

How could'st thou drayne the Life-blood of the Child,

To bid the Father wipe his eyes withall,

And yet be seene to beare a Womans face?

Women are soft, milde, pittifull, and flexible;

Thou, sterne, obdurate, flintie, rough, remorselesse.

Bidst thou me rage? why now thou hast thy wish.

Would'st haue me weepe? why now thou hast thy will.

For raging Wind blowes vp incessant showers,

And when the Rage allayes, the Raine begins.

These Teares are my sweet Rutlands Obsequies,

*And euery drop cryes vengeance for his death,
'Gainst thee fell Clifford, and thee false French-woman.*

rem

remNorthumb.

*Beshrew me, but his passions moues me so,
That hardly can I check my eyes from Teares.*

rem

remYorke.

That Face of his,

*The hungry Caniballs would not haue toucht,
Would not haue stayn'd with blood:*

*But you are more inhumane, more inexorable,
Oh, tenne times more then Tygers of Hyrcania.*

*See, ruthlesse Queene, a haplesse Fathers Teares:
This Cloth thou dipd'st in blood of my sweet Boy,
And I with Teares doe wash the blood away.*

*Keepe thou the Napkin, and goe boast of this,
And if thou tell'st the heauie storie right,
Vpon my Soule, the hearers will shed Teares:
Yea, euen my Foes will shed fast-falling Teares,
And say, Alas, it was a pittious deed.*

*There, take the Crowne, and with the Crowne, my Curse,
And in thy need, such comfourt come to thee,
As now I reape at thy too cruell hand.*

*Hard-hearted Clifford, take me from the World,
My Soule to Heauen, my Blood vpon your Heads.*

rem

remNorthumb.

*Had he been slaughter-man to all my Kinne,
I should not for my Life but weepe with him,
To see how inly Sorrow gripes his Soule.*

rem

remQueene.

*What, weeping ripe, my Lord Northumberland?
Thinke but vpon the wrong he did vs all,
And that will quickly drie thy melting Teares.*

rem

remClifford.

Heere's for my Oath, heere's for my Fathers Death.

rem

remQueene.

And heere's to right our gentle-hearted King.

rem

remYorke.

*Open thy Gate of Mercy, gracious God,
My Soule flies through these wounds, to seeke out thee.*

rem

remQueene.

*Off with his Head, and set it on Yorke Gates,
So Yorke may ouer-looke the Towne of Yorke.*

Flourish. Exit.

A March. Enter Edward, Richard, and their power.

rem

remEdward.

*I wonder how our Princely Father scap't:
Or whether he be scap't away, or no,
From Cliffords and Northumberlands pursuit?
Had he been ta'ne, we should haue heard the newes;
Had he beene slaine, we should haue heard the newes:
Or had he scap't, me thinkes we should haue heard
The happy tidings of his good escape.
How fares my Brother? why is he so sad?*

rem

remRichard.

*I cannot ioy, vntill I be resolu'd Where our right valiant Father is become.
I saw him in the Battaile range about,
And watcht him how he finged Clifford forth.
Me thought he bore him in the thickest troupe,
As doth a Lyon in a Heard of Neat,
Or as a Beare encompass'd round with Dogges:
Who hauing pincht a few, and made them cry,
The rest stand all aloofe, and barke at him.
So far'd our Father with his Enemies,
So fled his Enemies my Warlike Father:
Me thinkes 'tis prize enough to be his Sonne.
See how the Morning opes her golden Gates,
And takes her farwell of the glorious Sunne.
How well resembles it the prime of Youth,
Trimm'd like a Yonker, prauncing to his Loue?*

rem

remEd.

Dazle mine eyes, or doe I see three Sunnes?

rem

remRich.

*Three glorious Sunnes, each one a perfect Sunne,
Not seperated with the racking Clouds,
But seuer'd in a pale cleare-shining Skye.
See, see, they ioyne, embrace, and seeme to kisse,
As if they vow'd some League inuiolable.
Now are they but one Lampe, one Light, one Sunne:
In this, the Heauen figures some euent.*

rem

remEdward.

*'Tis wondrous strange,
The like yet neuer heard of.
I thinke it cites vs (Brother) to the field,
That wee, the Sonnes of braue Plantagenet,
Each one alreadie blazing by our meedes,
Should notwithstanding ioyne our Lights together,
And ouer-shine the Earth, as this the World.
What ere it bodes, hence-forward will I beare Vpon my Targuet three faire shining Sunnes.*

rem

remRichard.

*Nay, beare three Daughters:
By your leaue, I speake it,
You loue the Breeder better then the Male.*

Enter one blowing.

*But what art thou, whose heauie Lookes fore-tell
Some dreadfull story hanging on thy Tongue?*

rem

remMess.

*Ah, one that was a wofull looker on,
When as the Noble Duke of Yorke was slaine,
Your Princely Father, and my louing Lord.*

rem

remEdward.

Oh speake no more, for I haue heard too much.

rem

remRichard.

Say how he dy'de, for I will heare it all.

rem

remMess.

*Enuironed he was with many foes,
And stood against them, as the hope of Troy*

*Against the Greekes, that would haue entred Troy.
 But Hercules himselfe must yeeld to oddes:
 And many stroakes, though with a little Axe,
 Hewes downe and fells the hardest-tymber'd Oake.
 By many hands your Father was subdu'd,
 But onely slaught' red by the irefull Arme
 Of vn-relenting Clifford, and the Queene:
 Who crown'd the gracious Duke in high despight, Laugh'd in his face: and when with grieffe he wept,
 The ruthlesse Queene gaue him, to dry his Cheekes,
 A Napkin, steeped in the harmelesse blood
 Of sweet young Rutland, by rough Clifford slaine:
 And after many scornes, many foule taunts,
 They tooke his Head, and on the Gates of Yorke
 They set the same, and there it doth remaine,
 The saddest spectacle that ere I view'd.*

rem

remEdward.

*Sweet Duke of Yorke, our Prop to leane vpon,
 Now thou art gone, wee haue no Staffe, no Stay.
 Oh Clifford, boyst'rous Clifford, thou hast slaine
 The flowre of Europe, for his Cheualrie,
 And trecherously hast thou vanquisht him,
 For hand to hand he would haue vanquisht thee.
 Now my Soules Pallace is become a Prison:
 Ah, would she breake from hence, that this my body
 Might in the ground be closed vp in rest:
 For neuer henceforth shall I ioy againe:
 Neuer, oh neuer shall I see more ioy.*

rem

remRich.

*I cannot weepe: for all my bodies moysture
 Scarse serues to quench my Furnace-burning hart:
 Nor can my tongue vnloade my hearts great burthen,
 For selfe-same winde that I would speake withall,
 Is kindling coales that fires all my brest,
 And burnes me vp with flames, that tears would quench,
 To weepe, is to make lesse the depth of greefe:
 Teares then for Babes; Blowes, and Reuenge for mee.
 Richard, I beare thy name, Ile venge thy death,*

Or dye renowned by attempting it.

rem

remEd.

His name that valiant Duke hath left with thee:

His Dukedome, and his Chaire with me is left.

rem

remRich.

Nay, if thou be that Princely Eagles Bird,

Shew thy descent by gazing 'gainst the Sunne:

For Chaire and Dukedome, Throne and Kingdome say,

Either that is thine, or else thou wer't not his.

March. Enter Warwicke, Marquesse Mountacute, and their Army.

rem

remWarwick.

How now faire Lords? What faire? What newes abroad?

rem

remRich.

Great Lord of Warwicke, if we should recompt

Our balefull newes, and at each words deliuerance

Stab Poniards in our flesh, till all were told,

The words would adde more anguish then the wounds.

O valiant Lord, the Duke of Yorke is slaine.

rem

remEdw.

O Warwicke, Warwicke, that Plantagenet

Which held thee deere, as his Soules Redemption,

Is by the sterne Lord Clifford done to death.

rem

remWar.

Ten dayes ago, I drown'd these newes in teares.

And now to adde more measure to your woes,

I come to tell you things sith then befallne.

After the bloody Fray at Wakefield fought,

Where your braue Father breath'd his latest gaspe,

Tydings, as swiftly as the Postes could runne,

Were brought me of your Losse, and his Depart.

I then in London, keeper of the King,

Muster'd my Soldiers, gathered flockes of Friends,

Marcht toward Saint² Albons, to intercept the Queene, Bearing the King in my behalfe along:

²S.

*For by my Scouts, I was aduertised
 That she was comming with a full intent
 To dash our late Decree in Parliament,
 Touching King Henries Oath, and your Succession:
 Short Tale to make, we at Saint³ Albons met,
 Our Battailes ioyn'd, and both sides fiercely fought:
 But whether 'twas the coldnesse of the King,
 Who look'd full gently on his warlike Queene,
 That robb'd my Soldiers of their heated Spleene.
 Or whether 'twas report of her successe,
 Or more then common feare of Cliffords Rigour,
 Who thunders to his Captiues, Blood and Death,
 I cannot iudge: but to conclude with truth,
 Their Weapons like to Lightning, came and went:
 Our Souldiers like the Night-Owles lazie flight,
 Or like a lazie Thresher with a Flaile,
 Fell gently downe, as if they strucke their Friends.
 I cheer'd them vp with iustice of our Cause,
 With promise of high pay, and great Rewards:
 But all in vaine, they had no heart to fight,
 And we (in them) no hope to win the day,
 So that we fled: the King vnto the Queene,
 Lord George, your Brother, Norfolke, and my Selfe,
 In haste, post haste, are come to ioyne with you:
 For in the Marches heere we heard you were,
 Making another Head, to fight againe.*

rem

remEd.

*Where is the Duke of Norfolke, gentle Warwick?
 And when came George from Burgundy to England?*

rem

remWar.

*Some six miles off the Duke is with the Soldiers,
 And for your Brother be was lately sent
 From your kinde Aunt Dutchesse of Burgundie, With ayde of Souldiers to this needfull Warre.*

rem

remRich.

*'Twas odde belike, when valiant Warwick fled;
 Oft haue I heard his praises in Pursuite,*

³S.

But ne're till now, his Scandall of Retire.

rem

remWar.

Nor now my Scandall Richard, dost thou heare:

*For thou shalt know this strong right hand of mine,
Can plucke the Diadem from faint Henries head,
And wring the awefull Scepter from his Fist,
Were he as famous, and as bold in Warre,
As he is fam'd for Mildnesse, Peace, and Prayer.*

rem

remRich.

I know it well Lord Warwick, blame me not,

*'Tis loue I beare thy glories make me speake:
But in this troublous time, what's to be done?
Shall we go throw away our Coates of Steele,
And wrap our bodies in blacke mourning Gownes, Numb'ring our Aue-Maries with our Beads?
Or shall we on the Helmets of our Foes
Tell our Deuotion with reuengefull Armes?
If for the last, say I, and to it Lords.*

rem

remWar.

Why therefore Warwick came to seek you out,

*And therefore comes my Brother Mountague:
Attend me Lords, the proud insulting Queene,
With Clifford, and the haught Northumberland,
And of their Feather, many moe proud Birds,
Haue wrought the easie-melting King, like Wax.
He swore consent to your Succession,
His Oath enrolled in the Parliament.
And now to London all the crew are gone,
To frustrate both his Oath, and what beside
May make against the house of Lancaster.
Their power (I thinke) is thirty thousand strong:
Now, if the helpe of Norfolke, and my selfe,
With all the Friends that thou braue Earle of March,
Among'st the louing Welshmen can't procure,
Will but amount to foue and twenty thousand,
Why Via, to London will we march,
And once againe, bestride our foaming Steeds,
And once againe cry Charge vpon our Foes,*

But neuer once againe turne backe and flye.

rem

remRich.

*I, now me thinks I heare great Warwick speak;
Ne're may he liue to see a Sun-shine day,
That cries Retire, if Warwicke bid him stay.*

rem

remEd.

*Lord Warwicke, on thy shoulder will I leane,
And when thou failst (as God forbid the houre)
Must Edward fall, which perill heauen forefend.*

rem

remWar.

*No longer Earle of March, but Duke of Yorke:
The next degree, is Englands Royall Throne:
For King of England shalt thou be proclaim'd
In euery Burrough as we passe along,
And he that throwes not vp his cap for ioy,
Shall for the Fault make forfeit of his head.
King Edward, valiant Richard Mountague:
Stay we no longer, dreaming of Renowne,
But sound the Trumpets, and about our Taske.*

rem

remRich.

*Then Clifford, were thy heart as hard as Steele,
As thou hast shewne it flintie by thy deeds,
I come to pierce it, or to giue thee mine.*

rem

remEd.

Then strike vp Drums, God and Saint^A George for vs.

Enter a Messenger.

rem

remWar.

How now? what newes?

rem

remMes.

*The Duke of Norfolke sends you word by me,
The Queene is comming with a puissant Hoast,
And craues your company, for speedy counsell.*

rem

remWar.

⁴S.

Why then it sorts, braue Warriors, let's away.

Exeunt Omnes.

Flourish. Enter the King, the Queene, Clifford, Northum- and Yong Prince, with Drumme and Trumpettes.

rem

remQu.

*Welcome my Lord, to this braue town of Yorke, Yonders the head of that Arch-enemy,
That sought to be incompast with your Crowne.
Doth not the obiect cheere your heart, my Lord.*

rem

remK.

*I, as the rockes cheare them that feare their wrack,
To see this sight, it irkes my very soule:
With-hold reuenge (deere God) 'tis not my fault,
Nor wittingly haue I infring'd my Vow.*

rem

remClif.

*My gracious Liege, this too much lenity
And harmfull pittie must be layd aside:
To whom do Lyons cast their gentle Lookes?
Not to the Beast, that would vsurpe their Den.
Whose hand is that the Forrest Beare doth licke?
Not his that spoyles her yong before her face.
Who scapes the lurking Serpents mortall sting?
Not he that sets his foot vpon her backe.
The smallest Worme will turne, being troden on,
And Doues will pecke in safegard of their Brood.
Ambitious Yorke, did leuell at thy Crowne,
Thou smiling, while he knit his angry browes.
He but a Duke, would haue his Sonne a King,
And raise his issue like a louing Sire.
Thou being a King, blest with a goodly sonne,
Did'st yeeld consent to disinherit him:
Which argued thee a most vnloving Father.
Vnreasonable Creatures feed their young,
And though mans face be fearefull to their eyes,
Yet in protection of their tender ones,
Who hath not seene them euen with those wings,
Which sometime they haue vs'd with fearfull flight,*

*Make warre with him that climb'd vnto their nest,
Offering their owne liues in their yongs defence?
For shame, my Liege, make them your President:
Were it not pittie that this goodly Boy
Should loose his Birth-right by his Fathers fault,
And long heereafter say vnto his childe,
What my great Grandfather, and Grandsire got,
My carelesse Father fondly gaue away.
Ah, what a shame were this? Looke on the Boy,
And let his manly face, which promiseth
Successefull Fortune steele thy melting heart,
To hold thine owne, and leaue thine owne with him.*

rem

remKing.

*Full well hath Clifford plaid the Orator, Inferring arguments of mighty force:
But Clifford tell me, did'st thou neuer heare,
That things ill got, had euer bad successe.
And happy alwayes was it for that Sonne,
Whose Father for his hoording went to hell:
Ile leaue my Sonne my Vertuous deeds behinde,
And would my Father had left me no more:
For all the rest is held at such a Rate,
As brings a thousand fold more care to keepe,
Then in possession any iot of pleasure.
Ah Cosin Yorke, would thy best Friends did know,
How it doth greeue me that thy head is heere.*

rem

remQu.

*My Lord cheere vp your spirits, our foes are nye,
And this soft courage makes your Followers faint:
You promist Knighthood to our forward sonne, Vnsheath your sword, and dub him presently.
Edward, kneele downe.*

rem

remKing.

*Edward Plantagenet, arise a Knight,
And learne this Lesson; Draw thy Sword in right.*

rem

remPrin.

My gracious Father, by your Kingly leaue,

*Ile draw it as Apparant to the Crowne,
And in that quarrell, vse it to the death.*

rem

remClif.

Why that is spoken like a toward Prince.

Enter a Messenger.

rem

remMess.

*Royall Commanders, be in readinesse,
For with a Band of thirty thousand men,
Comes Warwicke backing of the Duke of Yorke,
And in the Townes as they do march along,
Proclaimes him King, and many flye to him,
Darraigne your battell, for they are at hand.*

rem

remClif.

*I would your Highnesse would depart the field,
The Queene hath best successe when you are absent.*

rem

remQu.

I good my Lord, and leaue vs to our Fortune.

rem

remKing.

Why, that's my fortune too, therefore Ile stay.

rem

remNorth.

Be it with resolution then to fight.

rem

remPrin.

*My Royall Father, cheere these Noble Lords,
And hearten those that fight in your defence:
Vnsheath your Sword, good Father: Cry Saint⁵ George.*

mixed. Enter Edward, Warwicke, Richard, Clarence, Norfolke, Mountague, and Soldiers.

rem

remEdw.

*Now periur'd Henry, wilt thou kneel for grace?
And set thy Diadem vpon my head?
Or bide the mortall Fortune of the field.*

rem

remQu.

⁵S.

*Go rate thy Minions, proud insulting Boy,
 Becomes it thee to be thus bold in termes,
 Before thy Soueraigne, and thy lawfull King?*

rem

remEd.

*I am his King, and he should bow his knee:
 I was adopted Heire by his consent.*

rem

remCla.

*Since when, his Oath is broke: for as I heare,
 You that are King, though he do weare the Crowne,
 Haue caus'd him by new Act of Parliament,
 To blot out me, and put his owne Sonne in.*

rem

remClif.

*And reason too,
 Who should succede the Father, but the Sonne.*

rem

remRich.

Are you there Butcher? O, I cannot speake.

rem

remClif.

*I Crooke-back, here I stand to answer thee,
 Or any he, the proudest of thy sort.*

rem

remRich.

'Twas you that kill'd yong Rutland, was it not?

rem

remClif.

I, and old Yorke, and yet not satisfied.

rem

remRich.

For Gods sake Lords giue signall to the fight.

rem

remWar.

*What say'st thou Henry,
 Wilt thou yeeld the Crowne?*

rem

remQu.

*Why how now long-tongu'd Warwicke, dare (you speak?
 When you and I, met at Saint⁶ Albons last,
 Your legges did better seruice then your hands.*

rem

remWar.

⁶S.

Then 'twas my turne to fly, and now 'tis thine:
rem
remClif.
You said so much before, and yet you fled.
rem
remWar.
'Twas not your valor Clifford droue me thence.
rem
remNor.
No, nor your manhood that I durst make you stay.
rem
remRich.
Northumberland, I hold thee reuerently,
Breake off the parley, for scarce I can refraine
The execution of my big-swolne heart
Vpon that Clifford, that cruell Child-killer.
rem
remClif.
I slew thy Father, cal'st thou him a Child?
rem
remRich.
I like a Dastard, and a treacherous Coward,
As thou didd'st kill our tender Brother Rutland,
But ere Sunset, Ile make thee curse the deed.
rem
remKing.
Haue done with words (my Lords) and heare me speake.
rem
remQu.
Defie them then, or els hold close thy lips.
rem
remKing.
I prythee giue no limits to my Tongue,
I am a King, and priuiledg'd to speake.
rem
remClif.
My Liege, the Wound that bred this meeting here, Cannot be cur'd by Words, therefore be still.
rem
remRich.
Then Executioner vnsheath thy sword:
By him that made vs all, I am resolu'd,
That Cliffords Manhood, lyes vpon his tongue.
rem
remEd.

Say Henry, shall I haue my right, or no:

A thousand men haue broke their Fasts to day,

That ne're shall dine, vnlesse thou yeeld the Crowne.

rem

remWar.

If thou deny, their Blood vpon thy head,

For Yorke in iustice put's his Armour on.

rem

remPr. Ed.

If that be right, which Warwick saies is right,

There is no vvrong, but euery thing is right.

rem

remWar.

Who euer got thee, there thy Mother stands,

For well I vvot, thou hast thy Mothers tongue.

rem

remQu.

But thou art neyther like thy Sire nor Damme,

But like a foule mishapen Stygmaticke,

Mark'd by the Destinies to be auoided,

As venome Toades, or Lizards dreadfull stings.

rem

remRich.

Iron of Naples, hid with English gilt,

Whose Father beares the Title of a King,

(As if a Channell should be call'd the Sea)

Sham'st thou not, knowing whence thou art extraught,

To let thy tongue detect thy base-borne heart.

rem

remEd.

A wispe of straw were worth a thousand Crowns,

To make this shamelesse Callet know her selfe:

Helen of Greece was fayrer farre then thou,

Although thy Husband may be Menelaus;

And ne're was Agamemnons Brother wrong'd

By that false Woman, as this King by thee.

His Father reuel'd in the heart of France,

And tam'd the King, and made the Dolphin stoope:

And had he match'd according to his State,

He might haue kept that glory to this day.

But when he tooke a begger to his bed,

And grac'd thy poore Sire with his Bridall day,

Euen then that Sun-shine brew'd a showre for him,

*That washt his Fathers fortunes forth of France,
And heap'd sedition on his Crowne at home:
For what hath broach'd this tumult but thy Pride?
Had'st thou bene meeke, our Title still had slept,
And we in pittie of the Gentle King,
Had slipt our Claime, vntill another Age.*

rem

remCla.

*But when we saw, our Sunshine made thy Spring,
And that thy Summer bred vs no increase,
We set the Axe to thy vsurping Roote:
And though the edge hath something hit our selues,
Yet know thou, since we haue begun to strike,
Wee'l neuer leaue, till we haue hewne thee downe,
Or bath'd thy growing, with our heated bloods.*

rem

remEdw.

*And in this resolution, I defie thee,
Not willing any longer Conference,
Since thou denied'st the gentle King to speake.
Sound Trumpets, let our bloody Colours waue,
And either Victorie, or else a Graue.*

rem

remQu.

Stay Edward.

rem

remEd.

*No wrangling Woman, wee'l no longer stay,
These words will cost ten thousand liues this day.*

Exeunt omnes.

Alarum. Excursions. Enter Warwicke.

rem

remWar.

*Fore-spent with Toile, as Runners with a Race,
I lay me downe a little while to breath:
For strokes receiu'd, and many blowes repaid,
Haue robb'd my strong knit sinewes of their strength,
And spight of spight, needs must I rest a-while.*

Enter Edward running.

rem

remEd.

*Smile gentle heauen, or strike vngentle death,
For this world frownes, and Edwards Sunne is clouded.*

rem

remWar.

How now my Lord, what happe? what hope of good?

Enter Clarence.

rem

remCla.

*Our hap is losse, our hope but sad dispaire,
Our rankes are broke, and ruine followes vs.
What counsaile giue you? whether shall we flye?*

rem

remEd.

*Bootlesse is flight, they follow vs with Wings,
And weake we are, and cannot shun pursuite.*

Enter Richard.

rem

remRich.

*Ah Warwicke, why hast yu withdrawn thy selfe?
Thy Brothers blood the thirsty earth hath drunk,
Broach'd with the Steely point of Cliffords Launce:
And in the very pangs of death, he cryde,
Like to a dismall Clangor heard from farre,
Warwicke, reuenge; Brother, reuenge my death.
So vnderneath the belly of their Steeds,
That stain'd their Fetlockes in his smoaking blood,
The Noble Gentleman gaue vp the ghost.*

rem

remWar.

*Then let the earth be drunken with our blood:
Ile kill my Horse, because I will not flye:
Why stand we like soft-hearted women heere,
Wayling our losses, whiles the Foe doth Rage,
And looke vpon, as if the Tragedie
Were plaid in iest, by counterfetting Actors.
Heere on my knee, I vow to God aboue,
Ile neuer pause againe, neuer stand still,
Till either death hath clos'd these eyes of mine,
Or Fortune giuen me measure of Reuenge.*

rem

remEd.

*Oh Warwicke, I do bend my knee with thine,
And in this vow do chaine my soule to thine:
I And ere my knee rise from the Earths cold face,
I throw my hands, mine eyes, my heart to thee,
Thou setter vp, and plucker downe of Kings:
Beseeching thee (if with thy will it stands)
That to my Foes this body must be prey,
Yet that thy brazen gates of heauen may ope,
And giue sweet passage to my sinfull soule.
Now Lords, take leaue vntill we meete againe,
Where ere it be, in heauen, or in earth.*

rem

remRich.

Brother,

*Giue me thy hand, and gentle Warwicke,
Let me imbrace thee in my weary armes;
I that did neuer weepe, now melt with wo,
That Winter should cut off our Spring-time so.*

rem

remWar.

Away, away:

Once more sweet Lords farwell.

rem

remCla.

*Yet let vs altogether to our Troopes,
And giue them leaue to flye, that will not stay:
And call them Pillars that will stand to vs:
And if we thriue, promise them such rewards
As Victors weare at the Olympian Games.
This may plant courage in their quailing breasts,
For yet is hope of Life and Victory:
Foreslow no longer, make we hence amaine.*

Exeunt

Excursions. Enter Richard and Clifford.

rem

remRich.

*Now Clifford, I haue singled thee alone,
Suppose this arme is for the Duke of Yorke,
And this for Rutland, both bound to reuenge,*

Wer't thou inuironed with a Brazen wall.

rem

remClif,

Now Richard, I am with thee heere alone,

This is the hand that stabb'd thy Father Yorke,

And this the hand, that slew thy Brother Rutland,

And here's the heart, that triumphs in their death,

And cheeres these hands, that slew thy Sire and Brother,

To execute the like vpon thy selfe,

And so haue at thee.

They Fight, Warwicke comes, Clifford flies.

rem

remRich.

Nay Warwicke, single out some other Chace,

For I my selfe will hunt this Wolfe to death.

Exeunt.

Alarum. Enter King Henry alone.

rem

remHen.

This battell fares like to the mornings Warre,

When dying clouds contend, with growing light,

What time the Shepheard blowing of his nailes,

Can neither call it perfect day, nor night.

Now swayes it this way, like a Mighty Sea,

Forc'd by the Tide, to combat with the Winde:

Now swayes it that way, like the selfe-same Sea,

Forc'd to retyre by furie of the Winde.

Sometime, the Flood preuailes; and than the Winde:

Now, one the better: then, another best;

Both tugging to be Victors, brest to brest:

Yet neither Conqueror, nor Conquered.

So is the equall poise of this fell Warre.

Heere on this Mole-hill will I sit me downe,

To whom God will, there be the Victorie:

For Margaret my Queene, and Clifford too

Haue chid me from the Battell: Swearing both,

They prosper best of all when I am thence.

Would I were dead, if Gods good will were so;

For what is in this world, but Greefe and Woe.

*Oh God! me thinkes it were a happy life,
 To be no better then a homely Swaine,
 To sit vpon a hill, as I do now,
 To carue out Dialls queintly, point by point,
 Thereby to see the Minutes how they runne:
 How many makes the Houre full compleate,
 How many Houres brings about the Day,
 How many Dayes will finish vp the Yeare,
 How many Yeares, a Mortall man may liue.
 When this is knowne, then to diuide the Times:
 So many Houres, must I tend my Flocke;:
 So many Houres, must I take my Rest:
 So many Houres, must I Contemplate:
 So many Houres, must I Sport my selfe:
 So many Dayes, my Ewes haue bene with yong:
 So many weekes, ere the poore Fooles will Eane:
 So many yeares, ere I shall sheere the Fleece:
 So Minutes, Houres, Dayes, Monthes, and Yeares, Past ouer to the end they were created,
 Would bring white haires, vnto a Quiet graue.
 Ah! what a life were this? How sweet? how louely?
 Giueth not the Hawthorne bush a sweeter shade
 To Shepheards, looking on their silly Sheepe,
 Then doth a rich Imbroider'd Canopie
 To Kings, that feare their Subiects treacherie?
 Oh yes, it doth; a thousand fold it doth.
 And to conclude, the Shepherds homely Curds,
 His cold thinne drinke out of his Leather Bottle,
 His wonted sleepe, vnder a fresh trees shade,
 All which secure, and sweetly he enioyes,
 Is farre beyond a Princes Delicates:
 His Viands sparkling in a Golden Cup,
 His bodie couched in a curious bed,
 When Care, Mistrust, and Treason waits on him.*

Alarum. Enter a Sonne that hath killed his Father, at one doore: and a Father that hath killed his Sonne at ano ther doore.

rem

remSon.

*Ill blowes the winde that profits no body,
 This man whom hand to hand I slew in fight,*

*May be possessed with some store of Crownes,
 And I that (haply) take them from him now,
 May yet (ere night) yeeld both my Life and them
 To some man else, as this dead man doth me.
 Who's this? Oh God! It is my Fathers face, Whom in this Conflict, I (vnwares) have kill'd:
 Oh heauy times! begetting such Euent.
 From London, by the King was I prest forth,
 My Father being the Earle of Warwickes man,
 Came on the part of Yorke, prest by his Master;
 And I, who at his hands receiu'd my life,
 Haue by my hands, of Life bereaued him.
 Pardon me God, I knew not what I did:
 And pardon Father, for I knew not thee.
 My Teares shall wipe away these bloody markes:
 And no more words, till they haue flow'd their fill.*

rem

remKing.

O pitteous spectacle! O bloody Times!

*Whiles Lyons Warre, and battaile for their Dennes, Poore harmlesse Lambes abide their enmity.
 Weepe wretched man: Ile ayde thee Teare for Teare,
 And let our hearts and eyes, like Ciuill Warre,
 Be blinde with teares, and break ore-charged with grieve*

Enter Father, bearing of his Sonne.

rem

remFa.

*Thou that so stoutly hath resisted me,
 Giue me thy Gold, if thou hast any Gold:
 For I haue bought it with an hundred blowes.
 But let me see: Is this our Foe-mans face?
 Ah, no, no, no, it is mine onely Sonne.,
 Ah Boy, if any life be left in thee,
 Throw vp thine eye: see, see, what showres arise,
 Blowne with the windie Tempest of my heart,
 Vpon thy wounds, that killes mine Eye, and Heart.
 O pittie God, this miserable Age!
 What Stragems? how fell? how Butcherly?
 Erreoneous, mutinous, and vnnaturall,
 This deadly quarrell daily doth beget?*

*O Boy! thy Father gaue thee life too soone,
And hath bereft thee of thy life too late.*

rem

remKing.

*Wo aboute wo: greefe, more them⁷ common greefe
O that my death would stay these ruthfull deeds:
O pittie, pittie, gentle heauen pittie:
The Red Rose and the White are on his face,
The fatall Colours of our striuing Houses:
The one, his purple Blood right well resembles,
The other his pale Cheekes (me thinkes) presenteth:
Wither one Rose, and let the other flourish:
If you contend, a thousand liues must wither.*

rem

remSon.

*How will my Mother, for a Fathers death
Take on with me, and ne're be satisfi'd?*

rem

remFa.

How will my Wife, for slaughter of my Sonne, Shed seas of Teares, and ne're be satisfi'd?

rem

remKing.

How will the Country, for these woful chances, Mis-thinke the King, and not be satisfied?

rem

remSon.

Was euer sonne, so rew'd a Fathers death?

rem

remFath.

Was euer Father so bemoan'd his Sonne?

rem

remHen.

*Was euer King so greeu'd for Subiects woe?
Much is your sorrow; Mine, ten times so much.*

rem

remSon.

Ile beare thee hence, where I may weepe my fill.

rem

remFath.

*These armes of mine shall be thy winding sheet:
My heart (sweet Boy) shall be thy Sepulcher,
For from my heart, thine Image ne're shall go.*

⁷thē

*My sighing brest, shall be thy Funerall bell;
 And so obsequious will thy Father be,
 Men for the losse of thee, hauing no more,
 As Priam was for all his Valiant Sonnes, Ile beare thee hence, and let them fight that will,
 For I haue murthered where I should not kill.*

Exit

rem

remHen.

*Sad-hearted-men, much ouergone with Care;
 Heere sits a King, more wofull then you are.*

Alarums. Excursions. Enter the Queen, the Prince, and Exeter.

rem

remPrin.

*Fly Father, flye: for all your Friends are fled.
 And Warwicke rages like a chafed Bull:
 Away, for death doth hold vs in pursuite.*

rem

remQu.

*Mount you my Lord, towards Barwicke post a maine:
 Edward and Richard like a brace of Grey-hounds, Hauing the fearfull flying Hare in sight,
 With fiery eyes, sparkling for very wrath,
 And bloody steele graspt in their yrefull hands
 Are at our backes, and therefore hence amaine.*

rem

remExet.

*Away: for vengeance comes along with them.
 Nay, stay not to expostulate, make speed,
 Or else come after, Ile away before.*

rem

remHen.

*Nay take me with thee, good sweet Exeter:
 Not that I feare to stay, but loue to go Whether the Queene intends. Forward, away.*

Exeunt

A lowd alarum. Enter Clifford Wounded.

rem

remClif.

*Heere burnes my Candle out; I, heere it dies,
 Which whiles it lasted, gaue King Henry light.
 O Lancaster! I feare thy ouerthrow,
 More then my Bodies parting with my Soule:
 My Loue and Feare, glew'd many Friends to thee,
 And now I fall. Thy tough Commixtures melts, Impairing Henry, strength'ning misproud Yorke;
 And whether flye the Gnats, but to the Sunne?
 And who shines now, but Henries Enemies?
 O Phœbus! had'st thou neuer giuen consent,
 That Phaeton should checke thy fiery Steeds,
 Thy burning Carre neuer had scorch'd the earth.
 And Henry, had'st thou sway'd as Kings should do,
 Or as thy Father, and his Father did,
 Giuing no ground vnto the house of Yorke,
 They neuer then had sprung like Sommer Flyes:
 I, and ten thousand in this lucklesse Realme,
 Hed left no mourning Widdowes for our death,
 And thou this day, had'st kept thy Chaire in peace.
 For what doth cherrish Weeds, but gentle ayre?
 And what makes Robbers bold, but too much lenity?
 Bootlesse are Plaints, and Curelesse are my Wounds:
 No way to flye, nor strength to hold out flight:
 The Foe is mercillesse, and will not pittie:
 For at their hands I haue deseru'd no pittie.
 The ayre hath got into my deadly Wounds,
 And much effule of blood, doth make me faint:
 Come Yorke, and Richard, Warwicke, and the rest,
 I stab'd your Fathers bosomes; Split my brest.*

Alarum & Retreat. Enter Edward, Warwicke, Richard, and Soldiers, Montague, & Clarence.

rem

remEd.

*Now breath we Lords, good fortune bids vs pause,
 And smooth the frownes of War, with peacefull lookes:
 Some Troopes pursue the bloody-minded Queene,
 That led calme Henry, though he were a King,
 As doth a Saile, fill'd with a fretting Gust Command an Argosie to stemme the Waues.*

But thinke you (Lords) that Clifford fled with them?

rem

remWar.

No, 'tis impossible he should escape:

(For though before his face I speake the words)

Your Brother Richard markt him for the Graue,

And wheresoere he is, hee's surely dead.

Clifford grones

rem

remRich.

Whose soule is that which takes hir heauy leaue?

A deadly grone, like life and deaths departing.

See who it is.

rem

remEd.

And now the Battailles ended,

If Friend or Foe, let him be gently used.

rem

remRich.

Reuoke that doome of mercy, for 'tis Clifford,

Who not contented that he lopp'd the Branch

In hewing Rutland, when his leaues put forth,

But set his murth'ring knife vnto the Roote,

From whence that tender spray did sweetly spring,

I meane our Princely Father, Duke of Yorke.

rem

remWar.

From off the gates of Yorke, fetch down the^s head,

Your Fathers head, which Ciifford placed there:

In stead whereof, let this supply the roome,

Measure for measure, must be answered.

rem

remEd.

Bring forth that fatall Schreechoule to our house,

That nothing sung but death, to vs and ours:

Now death shall stop his dismall threatning sound,

And his ill-boading tongue, no more shall speake.

rem

remWar.

I thinke is vnderstanding is bereft:

Speake Clifford, dost thou know who speakes to thee?

*Darke cloudy death ore-shades his beames of life,
And he nor sees, nor heares vs, what we say.*

rem

remRich.

*O would he did, and so (perhaps) he doth,
'Tis but his policy to counterfet,
Because he would auoid such bitter taunts
Which in the time of death he gaue our Father.*

rem

remCla

If so thou think'st, Vex him with eager Words.

rem

remRich.

Clifford, aske mercy, and obtaine no grace.

rem

remEd.

Clifford, repent in bootlesse penitence.

rem

remWar.

Clifford, devise excuses for thy faults.

rem

remCla.

While we devise fell Tortures for thy faults.

rem

remRich.

Thou didd'st loue Yorke, and I am son to Yorke.

rem

remEdw.

Thou pittied'st Rutland, I will pittie thee.

rem

remCla.

Where's Captaine Margaret, to fence you now?

rem

remWar.

They mocke thee Clifford,

Swear as thou was't wont.

rem

remRic.

What, not an Oath? Nay then the world go's hard

When Clifford cannot spare his Friends an oath:

I know by that he's dead, and by my Soule,

If this right hand would buy two houres life,

That I (in all despight) might rayle at him,

This hand should chop it off: & with the issuing Blood

Stifle the Villaine, whose vnstanch'd thirst Yorke, and yong Rutland could not satisfie

rem

remWar.

*I, but he's dead. Of with the Traitors head,
And reare it in the place your Fathers stands.
And now to London with Triumphant march,
There to be crowned Englands Royall King:
From whence, shall Warwicke cut the Sea to France,
And aske the Ladie Bona for thy Queene:
So shalt thou sinow both these Lands together,
And hauing France thy Friend, thou shalt not dread
The scattred Foe, that hopes to rise againe:
For though they cannot greatly sting to hurt,
Yet looke to haue them buz to offend thine eares:
First, will I see the Coronation,
And then to Britanny Ile crosse the Sea,
To effect this marriage, so it please my Lord.*

rem

remEd.

*Euen as thou wilt sweet Warwicke, let it bee:
For in thy shoulder do I builde my Seate;
And neuer will I vndertake the thing
Wherein thy counsaile and consent is wanting:
Richard, I will create thee Duke of Gloucester,
And George of Clarence; Warwicke as our Selfe, Shall do, and vndo as him pleaseth best.*

rem

remRich.

Let me be Duke of Clarence, George of Gloster, For Glosters Dukedome is too ominous.

rem

remWar.

*Tut, that's a foolish obseruation:
Richard, be Duke of Gloster: Now to London,
To see these Honors in possession.*

Exeunt

Enter Sinklo, and Humfrey, with Crosse-bowes in their hands.

rem

remSink.

*Vnder this thicke growne brake, wee'l shrowd (our selues:
 For through this Laund anon the Deere will come,
 And in this couert will we make our Stand, Culling the principall of all the Deere.*

rem

remHum.

Ile stay aboue the hill, so both may shoot.

rem

remSink.

*That cannot be, the noise of thy Crosse-bow
 Will scarre the Heard, and so my shoot is lost:
 Heere stand we both, and ayme we at the best:
 And for the time shall not seeme tedious,
 Ile tell thee what befell me on a day,
 In this selfe-place, where now we meane to stand.*

rem

remSink.

Heere comes a man, let's stay till he be past.

Enter the King with a Prayer booke.

rem

remHen.

*From Scotland am I stolne euen of pure loue,
 To greet mine owne Land with my wishfull sight:
 No Harry, Harry, 'tis no Land of thine,
 Thy place is fill'd, thy Scepter wrung from thee,
 Thy Balme washt off, wherewith thou was Anointed:
 No bending knee will call thee Cæsar now,
 No humble suters prease to speake for right:
 No, not a man comes for redresse of thee:
 For how can I helpe them, and not my selfe?*

rem

remSink.

*I, heere's a Deere, whose skin's a Keepers Fee:
 This is the quondam King; Let's seize vpon him.*

rem

remHen.

*Let me embrace the sower Aduersaries,
 For Wise men say, it is the wisest course.*

rem

remHum.

Why linger we? Let vs lay hands vpon him.

rem

remSink.

Forbeare a-while, wee'l heare a little more.

rem

remHen.

My Queene and Son are gone to France for aid:

And (as I heare) the great Commanding Warwicke

I: thither gone, to craue the French Kings Sister

To wife for Edward. If this newes be true,

Poore Queene, and Sonne, your labour is but lost:

For Warwicke is a subtle Orator:

And Lewis a Prince soone wonne with mouing words:

By this account then, Margaret may winne him,

For she's a woman to be pittied much:

Her sighes will make a batt'ry in his brest,

Her teares will pierce into a Marble heart:

The Tyger will be milde, whiles she doth mourne;

And Nero will be tainted with remorse,

To heare and see her plaints, her Brinish Teares.

I, but shee's come to begge, Warwicke to giue:

Shee on his left side, crauing ayde for Henrie;

He on his right, asking a wife for Edward.

Shee Weepes, and sayes, her Henry is depos'd:

He Smiles, and sayes, his Edward is instaul'd;

That she (poore Wretch) for greefe can speake no more:

Whiles Warwicke tels his Title, smooths the Wrong,

Inferreth arguments of mighty strength,

And in conclusion winnes the King from her,

With promise of his Sister, and what else,

To strengthen and support King Edwards place.

O Margaret, thus 'twill be, and thou (poore soule)

Art then forsaken, as thou went'st forlorne.

rem

remHum.

Say, what art thou talk'st of Kings & Queens?

rem

remKing.

More then I seeme, and lesse then I was born to:

A man at least, for lesse I should not be:

And men may talke of Kings, and why not I?

rem

remHum.

I, but thou talk'st, as if thou wer't a King.

rem

remKing.

Why so I am (in Minde) and that's enough.

rem

remHum.

But if thou be a King, where is thy Crowne?

rem

remKing.

My Crowne is in my heart, not on my head:

Not deck'd with Diamonds, and Indian stones:

Nor to be seene: my Crowne, is call'd Content,

A Crowne it is, that sildome Kings enjoy.

rem

remHum.

Well, if you be a King crown'd with Content,

Your Crowne Content, and you, must be contented

To go along with vs. For (as we thinke)

You are the king King Edward hath depos'd:

And we his subiects, sworne in all Allegance,

Will apprehend you, as his Enemie.

rem

remKing.

But did you neuer sweare, and breake an Oath.

rem

remHum.

No, neuer such an Oath, nor will not now.

rem

remKing.

Where did you dwell when I was King⁹ of England?

rem

remHum.

Heere in this Country, where we now remaine.

rem

remKing.

I was annointed King at nine monthes old,

My Father, and my Grandfather were Kings:

And you were sworne true Subiects vnto me:

And tell me then, haue you not broke your Oathes?

rem

remSin.

No, for we were Subiects, but while you wer king

rem

remKing.

Why? Am I dead? Do I not breath a Man?

⁹K.

*Ah simple men, you know not what you sweare:
 Looke, as I blow this Feather from my Face,
 And as the Ayre blowes it to me againe,
 Obeying with my winde when I do blow,
 And yeelding to another, when it blowes,
 Commanded alwayes by the greater gust:
 Such is the lightnesse of you, common men.
 But do not breake your Oathes, for of that sinne,
 My milde intreatie shall not make you guiltie.
 Go where you will, the king shall be commanded,
 And be you kings, command, and Ile obey.*

rem

remSinklo.

*We are true Subiects to the king,
 King Edward.*

rem

remKing.

*So would you be againe to Henrie,
 If he were seated as king Edward is.*

rem

remSinklo.

*We charge you in Gods name & the Kings,
 To go with vs vnto the Officers.*

rem

remKing.

*In Gods name lead, your Kings name be obeyd,
 And what God will, that let your King performe,
 And what he will, I humbly yeeld vnto.*

Exeunt

Enter K. Edward, Gloster, Clarence, Lady Gray.

rem

remKing.

*Brother of Gloster, at Saint¹⁰ Albons field
 This Ladyes Husband, Sir Richard Grey, was slaine,
 His Land then seiz'd on by the Conqueror,
 Her suit is now, to repossesse those Lands,
 Which wee in Iustice cannot well deny,
 Because in Quarrell of the House of Yorke,
 The worthy Gentleman did lose his Life.*

rem

remRich.

Your Highnesse shall doe well to graunt her suit:

It were dishonor to deny it her.

rem

remKing.

It were no lesse, but yet Ile make a pawse.

rem

remRich.

Yea, is it so:

I see the Lady hath a thing to graunt,

Before the King will graunt her humble suit.

remClarence.

Hee knowes the Game, how true hee keepes the winde?

rem

remRich.

Silence.

rem

remKing.

Widow, we will consider of your suit,

And come some other time to know our minde.

rem

remWid.

Right gracious Lord, I cannot brooke delay:

May it please your Highnesse to resolute me now,

And what your pleasure is, shall satisfie me.

rem

remRich.

I Widow? then Ile warrant you all your Lands,

And if what pleases him, shall pleasure you:

Fight closer, or good faith you'le catch a Blow.

remClarence.

I feare her not, vnlesse she chance to fall.

rem

remRich.

God forbid that, for hee'le take vantages.

rem

remKing.

How many Children hast thou, Widow? tell me.

remClarence.

I thinke he meanes to begge a Child of her.

rem

remRich.

Nay then whip me: hee'le rather giue her two.

rem

remWid.

Three, my most gracious Lord.

rem

remRich.

You shall haue foure, if you'le be rul'd by him.

rem

remKing.

'Twere pittie they should lose their Fathers Lands.

rem

remWid.

Be pittifull, dread Lord, and graunt it then.

rem

remKing.

Lords giue vs leaue, Ile trye this Widowes wit.

rem

remRich.

I, good leaue haue you, for you will haue leaue,

Till Youth take leaue, and leaue you to the Crutch.

rem

remKing.

Now tell me, Madame, doe you loue your Children?

rem

remWid.

I, full as dearely as I loue my selfe.

rem

remKing.

And would you not doe much to doe them good?

rem

remWid.

To doe them good, I would sustayne some harme.

rem

remKing.

Then get your Husbands Lands, to doe them good.

rem

remWid.

Therefore I came vnto your Maiestie.

rem

remKing.

Ile tell you how these Lands are to be got.

rem

remWid.

So shall you bind me to your Highnesse seruice.

rem

remKing.

What seruice wilt thou doe me, if I giue them?
rem
remWid.
What you command, that rests in me to doe.
rem
remKing.
But you will take exceptions to my Boone.
rem
remWid.
No, gracious Lord, except I cannot doe it.
rem
remKing.
I, but thou canst doe what I meane to aske.
rem
remWid.
Why then I will doe what your Grace com mands.
rem
remRich.
Hee plyes her hard, and much Raine weares the Marble.
rem
remClar.
As red as fire? nay then, her Wax must melt.
rem
remWid.
Why stoppes my Lord? shall I not heare my Taske?
rem
remKing.
An easie Taske, 'tis but to loue a King.
rem
remWid.
That's soone perform'd, because I am a Subiect.
rem
remKing.
Why then, thy Husbands Lands I freely giue thee.
rem
remWid.
I take my leaue with many thousand thankes.
rem
remRich.
The Match is made, shee seales it with a Cursie.
rem
remKing.
But stay thee, 'tis the fruits of loue I meane.
rem
remWid.
The fruits of Loue, I meane, my louing Liege.
rem

remKing.

I, but I feare me in another sence.

What Loue, think'st thou, I sue so much to get?

rem

remWid.

My loue till death, my humble thanks, my prayers,

That loue which Vertue begges, and Vertue graunts.

rem

remKing.

No, by my troth, I did not meane such loue.

rem

remWid.

Why then you meane not, as I thought you did.

rem

remKing.

But now you partly may perceiue my minde.

rem

remWid.

My minde will neuer graunt what I perceiue

Your Highnesse aymes at, if I ayme aright.

rem

remKing.

To tell thee plaine, I ayme to lye with thee.

rem

remWid.

To tell you plaine, I had rather lye in Prison.

rem

remKing.

Why then thou shalt not haue thy Husbands Lands.

rem

remWid.

Why then mine Honestie shall be my Dower,

For by that losse, I will not purchase them.

rem

remKing.

Therein thou wrong'st thy Children mightily.

rem

remWid.

Herein your Highnesse wrongs both them & me:

But mightie Lord, this merry inclination

Accords not with the sadnesse of my suit:

Please you dismisse me, eyther with I, or no.

rem

remKing.

I, if thou wilt say I to my request:

No, if thou do'st say No to my demand.

rem

remWid.

Then No, my Lord: my suit is at an end.

rem

remRich.

The Widow likes him not, shee knits her Browes.

remClarence.

Hee is the bluntest Wooer in Christen dome.

rem

remKing.

*Her Looks doth argue her replete with Modesty,
Her Words doth shew her Wit incomparable,
All her perfections challenge Soueraigntie,
One way, or other, shee is for a King,
And shee shall be my Loue, or else my Queene.
Say, that King Edward take thee for his Queene?*

rem

remWid.

'Tis better said then done, my gracious Lord:

I am a subiect fit to ieast withall,

But farre vnfit to be a Soueraigne.

rem

remKing.

*Sweet Widow, by my State I sweare to thee,
I speake no more then what my Soule intends,
And that is, to enioy thee for my Loue.*

rem

remWid.

And that is more then I will yeeld vnto:

I know, I am too meane to be your Queene,

And yet too good to be your Concubine.

rem

remKing.

You cauill, Widow, I did meane my Queene.

rem

remWid.

'Twill grieue your Grace, my Sonnes should call you Father.

rem

remKing.

No more, then when my Daughters

Call thee Mother.

Thou art a Widow, and thou hast some Children,

And by Gods Mother, I being but a Batchelor,

*Haue other-some. Why, 'tis a happy thing,
To be the Father vnto many Sonnes:
Answer no more, for thou shalt be my Queene.*

rem

remRich.

The Ghostly Father now hath done his Shrift.

remClarence.

When hee was made a Shriuer, 'twas for shift.

rem

remKing.

Brothers, you muse what Chat wee two haue had.

rem

remRich.

The Widow likes it not, for shee lookes very sad.

rem

remKing.

You'd thinke it strange, if I should marrie her.

remClarence.

To who, my Lord?

rem

remKing.

Why Clarence, to my selfe.

rem

remRich.

That would be tenne dayes wonder at the least.

remClarence.

That's a day longer then a Wonder lasts.

rem

remRich.

By so much is the Wonder in extremes.

rem

remKing.

Well, ieast on Brothers: I can tell you both,

He1 suit is graunted for her Husbands Lands.

Enter a Noble man.

rem

remNob.

My gracious Lord, Henry your Foe is taken,

And brought your Prisoner to your Pallace Gate.

rem

remKing.

See that he be conuey'd vnto the Tower:

*And goe wee Brothers to the man that tooke him,
To question of his apprehension.
Widow goe you along: Lords vse her honourable.*

Exeunt.

Manet Richard.

rem

remRich.

I, Edward will vse Women honourably:

*Would he were wasted, Marrow, Bones, and all,
That from his Loynes no hopefull Branch may spring,
To crosse me from the Golden time I looke for:
And yet, betweene my Soules desire, and me,
The lustfull Edwards Title buried,
Is Clarence, Henry, and his Sonne young Edward,
And all the vnlook'd-for Issue of their Bodies,
To take their Roomes, ere I can place my selfe:
A cold premeditation for my purpose.
Why then I doe but dreame on Soueraigntie,
Like one that stands vpon a Promontorie,
And spies a farre-off shore, where hee would tread,
Wishing his foot were equall with his eye,
And chides the Sea, that sunders him from thence,
Saying, hee'le lade it dry, to haue his way:
So doe I wish the Crowne, being so farre off,
And so I chide the meanes that keepes me from it,
And so (I say) Ile cut the Causes off,
Flattering me with impossibilities:
My Eyes too quicke, my Heart o're-weenes too much,
Vnlesse my Hand and Strength could equall them.
Well, say there is no Kingdome then for Richard:
What other Pleasure can the World affoord?
Ile make my Heauen in a Ladies Lappe,
And decke my Body in gay Ornaments,
And 'witch sweet Ladies with my Words and Lookes.
Oh miserable Thought! and more unlikely,
Then to accomplish twentie Golden Crownes.
Why Loue forswore me in my Mothers Wombe:
And for I should not deale in her soft Lawes,*

*Shee did corrupt frayle Nature with some Bribe,
To shrink mine Arme vp like a wither'd Shrub,
To make an enuious Mountaine on my Back,
Where sits Deformatie to mocke my Body;
To shape my Legges of an vnequall size,
To dis-proportion me in euery part:
Like to a Chaos, or an vn-lick'd Beare-whelpe,
That carryes no impression like the Damme.
And am I then a man to be belou'd?
Oh monstrous fault, to harbour such a thought.
Then since this Earth affoords no Ioy to me,
But to command, to check, to o're-beare such,
As are of better Person then my selfe:
Ile make my Heauen, to dreame vpon the Crowne,
And whiles I liue, t'account this World but Hell,
Vntill my mis-shap'd Trunke, that beares this Head,
Be round impaled with a glorious Crowne.
And yet I know not how to get the Crowne,
For many Liues stand betweene me and home:
And I, like one lost in a Thornie Wood,
That rents the Thornes, and is rent with the Thornes,
Seeking a way, and straying from the way,
Not knowing how to finde the open Ayre,
But toying desperately to finde it out,
Torment my selfe, to catch the English Crowne:
And from that torment I will free my selfe,
Or hew my way out with a bloody Axe.
Why I can smile, and murther whiles I smile,
And cry, Content, to that which grieues my Heart,
And wet my Cheekes with artificiall Teares,
And frame my Face to all occasions.
Ile drowne more Saylers then the Mermaid shall,
Ile slay more gazers then the Basiliske,
Ile play the Orator as well as Nestor, Deceiue more slyly then Vlisses could,
And like a Synon, take another Troy.
I can adde Colours to the Camelion,
Change shapes with Proteus, for aduantages,
And set the murtherous Macheuill to Schoole.*

*Can I doe this, and cannot get a Crowne?
Tut, were it farther off, Ile plucke it downe.*

Exit.

Flourish.

Enter Lewis the French King, his Sister Bona, his Admirall, call'd Bourbon: Prince Edward, Queene Margaret, and the Earle of Oxford. Lewis sits, and riseth vp againe.

rem

remLewis.

*Faire Queene of England, worthy Margaret,
Sit downe with vs: it ill befits thy State,
And Birth, that thou should'st stand, while Lewis doth sit.*

rem

remMarg.

*No, mightie King of France: now Margaret Must strike her sayle, and learne a while to serue,
Where Kings command. I was (I must confesse)
Great Albions Queene, in former Golden dayes:
But now mischance hath trod my Title downe,
And with dis-honor layd me on the ground,
Where I must take like Seat vnto my fortune,
And to my humble Seat conforme my selfe.*

rem

remLewis.

Why say, faire Queene, whence springs this deepe despaire?

rem

remMarg.

*From such a cause, as fills mine eyes with teares,
And stops my tongue, while heart is drown'd in cares.*

rem

remLewis.

*What ere it be, be thou still like thy selfe,
And sit thee by our side.*

Seats her by him.

*Yeeld not thy necke to Fortunes yoake,
But let thy dauntlesse minde still ride in triumph,
Ouer all mischance.
Be plaine, Queene Margaret, and tell thy griefe,
It shall be eas'd, if France can yeeld reliefe.*

rem

remMarg.

Those gracious words

*Reuiue my drooping thoughts,
And giue my tongue-ty'd sorrowes leaue to speake.
Now therefore be it knowne to Noble Lewis,
That Henry, sole possessor of my Loue,
Is, of a King, become a banisht man,
And forc'd to liue in Scotland a Forlorne;
While proud ambitious Edward, Duke of Yorke, Vsurpes the Regall Title, and the Seat
Of Englands true anoyned lawfull King.
This is the cause that I, poore Margaret,
With this my Sonne, Prince Edward, Henries Heire,
Am come to craue thy iust and lawfull ayde:
And if thou faile vs, all our hope is done,
Scotland hath will to helpe, but cannot helpe:
Our People, and our Peeres, are both mis-led,
Our Treasure seiz'd, our Souldiors put to flight,
And (as thou seest) our selues in heauie plight.*

rem

remLewis.

Renowned Queene,

*With patience calme the Storme,
While we bethinke a meanes to breake it off.*

rem

remMarg.

The more wee stay, the stronger growes our Foe.

rem

remLewis.

The more I stay, the more Ile succour thee.

rem

remMarg.

O, but impatience waiteth on true sorrow.

And see where comes the breeder of my sorrow.

Enter Warwicke.

rem

remLewis.

What's hee approacheth boldly to our pre sence?

rem

remMarg.

Our Earle of Warwicke, Edwards greatest Friend.

rem

remLewis.

Welcome braue Warwicke, what brings thee to France?

Hee descends. Shee ariseth.

rem

remMarg.

I now begins a second Storme to rise,

For this is hee that moues both Winde and Tyde.

rem

remWarw.

From worthy Edward, King of Albion,

My Lord and Soueraigne, and thy vowed Friend,

I come (in Kindnesse, and vnfayned Loue)

First, to doe greetings to thy Royall Person,

And then to craue a League of Amitie:

And lastly, to confirme that Amitie

With Nuptiall Knot, if thou vouchsafe to graunt

That vertuous Lady Bona, thy faire Sister,

To Englands King, in lawfull Marriage.

rem

remMarg.

If that goe forward, Henries hope is done.

rem

remWarw.

And gracious Madame,

Speaking to Bona.

In our Kings behalfe,

I am commanded, with your leaue and fauor,

Humbly to kisse your Hand, and with my Tongue

To tell the passion of my Soueraignes Heart;

Where Fame, late entring at his heedfull Eares,

Hath plac'd thy Beauties Image, and thy Vertue.

rem

remMarg.

King Lewis, and Lady Bona, heare me speake,

Before you answer Warwicke. His demand

Springs not from Edwards well-meant honest Loue,

But from Deceit, bred by Necessitie:

For how can Tyrants safely gouerne home,

Vnlesse abroad they purchase great allyance?

To proue him Tyrant, this reason may suffice,

*That Henry liueth still: but were hee dead,
 Yet here Prince Edward stands, King Henries Sonne.
 Looke therefore Lewis, that by this League and Mariage
 Thou draw not on thy Danger, and Dis-honor:
 For though Vsurpers sway the rule a while,
 Yet Heau'ns are iust, and Time suppresseth Wrongs.*

rem

remWarw.

Iniurious Margaret.

rem

remEdw.

And why not Queene?

rem

remWarw.

Because thy Father Henry did usurpe,

And thou no more art Prince, then shee is Queene.

rem

remOxf.

*Then Warwicke disanulls great Iohn of Gaunt,
 Which did subdue the greatest part of Spaine;
 And after Iohn of Gaunt, Henry the Fourth,
 Whose Wisdome was a Mirror to the wisest:
 And after that wise Prince, Henry the Fift,
 Who by his Prowesse conquered all France:
 From these, our Henry lineally descends.*

rem

remWarw.

Oxford, how haps it in this smooth discourse,

You told not, how Henry the Sixt hath lost

All that, which Henry the Fift had gotten:

Me thinkes these Peeres of France should smile at that.

But for the rest: you tell a Pedigree

Of threescore and two yeeres, a silly time

To make prescription for a Kingdomes worth.

rem

remOxf.

Why Warwicke, canst thou speak against thy Liege,

Whom thou obeyd'st thirtie and six yeeres,

And not bewray thy Treason with a Blush?

rem

remWarw.

Can Oxford, that did euer sence the right,

Now buckler Falsehood with a Pedigree?

For shame leaue Henry, and call Edward King.

rem

remOxf.

*Call him my King, by whose iniurious doome
My elder Brother, the Lord sAubrey Vere
Was done to death? and more then so, my Father,
Euen in the downe-fall of his mellow'd yeeres,
When Nature brought him to the doore of Death?
No Warwicke, no: while Life vpholds this Arme,
This Arme vpholds the House of Lancaster.*

rem

remWarw.

And I the House of Yorke.

rem

remLewis.

*Queene Margaret, Prince Edward, and Oxford,
Vouchsafe at our request, to stand aside,
While I vse further conference with Warwicke.*

They stand aloofe.

rem

remMarg.

Heauens graunt, that Warwickes wordes be witch him not.

rem

remLewis.

*Now Warwicke, tell me euen vpon thy conscience
Is Edward your true King? for I were loth
To linke with him, that were not lawfull chosen.*

rem

remWarw.

Thereon I pawne my Credit, and mine Ho nor.

rem

remLewis.

But is hee gracious in the Peoples eye?

rem

remWarw.

The more, that Henry was vnfortunate.

rem

remLewis.

*Then further: all dissembling set aside,
Tell me for truth, the measure of his Loue Vnto our Sister Bona.*

rem

remWar.

*Such it seemes,
 As may beseeme a Monarch like himselfe.
 My selfe haue often heard him say, and sweare,
 That this his Loue was an externall Plant,
 Whereof the Root was fixt in Vertues ground,
 The Leaues and Fruit maintain'd with Beauties Sunne, Exempt from Enuy, but not from Disdaine, Vnlesse the Lady Bona quit his paine.*

rem

remLewis.

Now Sister, let vs heare your firme resolue.

rem

remBona.

*Your graunt, or your denyall, shall be mine.
 Yet I confesse, that often ere this day,*

Speaks to War.

When I haue heard your Kings desert recounted, Mine eare hath tempted iudgement to desire.

rem

remLewis.

Then Warwicke, thus:

*Our Sister shall be Edwards.
 And now forthwith shall Articles be drawne, Touching the Ioynture that your King must make,
 Which with her Dowrie shall be counter-poys'd:
 Draw neere, Queene Margaret, and be a witnesse,
 That Bona shall be Wife to the English King.*

rem

remPr. Edw.

To Edward, but not to the English King.

rem

remMarg.

*Deceitfull Warwicke, it was thy deuce,
 By this alliance to make void my suit:
 Before thy comming, Lewis was Henries friend.*

rem

remLewis.

*And still is friend to him, and Margaret.
 But if your Title to the Crowne be weake,
 As may appeare by Edwards good successe;
 Then 'tis but reason, that I be releas'd
 From giuing ayde, which late I promised.*

*Yet shall you haue all kindnesse at my hand,
That your Estate requires, and mine can yeeld.*

rem

remWarw.

Henry now liues in Scotland, at his ease;

Where hauing nothing, nothing can he lose.

And as for you your selfe (our quondam Queene)

You haue a Father able to maintaine you,

And better 'twere, you troubled him, then France.

rem

remMar.

Peace impudent, and shamelesse Warwicke,

Proud setter vp, and puller downe of Kings,

I will not hence, till with my Talke and Teares

(Both full of Truth) I make King Lewis behold

Thy slye conueyance, and thy Lords false loue,

Post blowing a horne Within.

For both of you are Birds of selfe-same Feather.

rem

remLewis.

Warwicke, this is some poste to vs, or thee.

Enter the Poste.

rem

remPost.

My Lord Ambassador,

These Letters are for you.

Speakes to Warwick,

Sent from your Brother Marquesse Montague.

These from our King, vnto your Maiesty.

To Lewis.

And Madam, these for you:

To Margaret

From whom, I know not.

They all reade their Letters.

rem

remOxf.

I like it well, that our faire Queene and Mistris

Smiles at her newes, while Warwicke frownes at his.

rem

remPrince Ed.

Nay marke how Lewis stampes as he were I netled. I hope, all's for the best.

rem

remLew.

Warwicke, what are thy Newes?

And yours, faire Queene.

rem

remMar.

Mine such, as fill my heart with vnhop'd ioyes.

rem

remWar.

Mine full of sorrow, and hearts discontent.

rem

remLew.

What? has your King married the Lady Grey?

And now to sooth your Forgery, and his,

Sends me a Paper to perswade me Patience?

Is this th'Alliance that he seekes with France?

Dare he presume to scorne vs in this manner?

rem

remMar.

I told your Maiesty as much before:

This proueth Edwards Loue, and Warwickes honesty.

rem

remWar.

*King Lewis, I heere protest in sight of heauen,
And by the hope I haue of heauenly blisse,
That I am cleere from this misdeed of Edwards;
No more my King, for he dishonors me,
But most himselfe, if he could see his shame.
Did I forget, that by the House of Yorke
My Father came vntimely to his death?
Did I let passe th'abuse done to my Neece?
Did I impale him with the Regall Crowne?
Did I put Henry from his Natiue Right?
And am I guerdon'd at the last, with Shame?
Shame on himselfe, for my Desert is Honor.
And to repaire my Honor lost for him,
I heere renounce him, and returne to Henry.
My Noble Queene, let former grudges passe,
And henceforth, I am thy true Seruitour:*

*I will reuenge his wrong to Lady Bona,
And replant Henry in his former state.*

rem

remMar.

Warwicke,

*These words haue turn'd my Hate, to Loue,
And I forgiue, and quite forget old faults,
And ioy that thou becom'st King Henries Friend.*

rem

remWar.

*So much his Friend, I, his vnfaigned Friend,
That if King Lewis vouchsafe to furnish vs
With some few Bands of chosen Soldiours,
Ile undertake to Land them on our Coast,
And force the Tyrant from his seat by Warre.
'Tis not his new-made Bride shall succour him.
And as for Clarence, as my Letters tell me,
Hee's very likely now to fall from him,
For matching more for wanton Lust, then Honor,
Or then for strength and safety of our Country.*

rem

remBona.

*Deere Brother, how shall Bona be reueng'd,
But by thy helpe to this distressed Queene?*

rem

remMar.

Renowned Prince, how shall Poore Henry liue, Vnlesse thou rescue him from foule dispaire?

rem

remBona.

My quarrel, and this English Queens, are one.

rem

remWar.

And mine faire Lady Bona, ioynes with yours.

rem

remLew.

And mine, with hers, and thine, and Margarets.

*Therefore, at last, I firmly am resolu'd
You shall haue ayde.*

rem

remMar.

Let me giue humble thankes for all, at once.

rem

remLew.

*Then Englands Messenger, returne in Poste,
And tell false Edward, thy supposed King,
That Lewis of France, is sending ouer Maskers
To reuell it with him, and his new Bride.
Thou seest what's past, go feare thy King withall.*

rem

remBona.

*Tell him, in hope hee'l proue a widower shortly,
I weare the Willow Garland for his sake.*

rem

remMar.

*Tell him, my mourning weeds are layde aside,
And I am ready to put Armor on.*

rem

remWar.

*Tell him from me, that he hath done me wrong,
And therefore Ile vn-Crowne him, er't be long.
There's thy reward, be gone.*

Exit Post.

rem

remLew.

*But Warwicke,
Thou and Oxford, with fiue thousand men
Shall crosse the Seas, and bid false Edward battaile:
And as occasion serues, this Noble Queen
And Prince, shall follow with a fresh Supply.
Yet ere thou go, but answer me one doubt:
What Pledge haue we of thy firme Loyalty?*

rem

remWar.

*This shall assure my constant Loyalty,
That if our Queene, and this young Prince agree,
Ile ioyne mine eldest daughter, and my Ioy,
To him forthwith, in holy Wedlocke bands.*

rem

remMar.

*Yes, I agree, and thanke you for your Motion.
Sonne Edward, she is Faire and Vertuous,
Therefore delay not, giue thy hand to Warwicke,
And with thy hand, thy faith irreuocable,
That onely Warwickes daughter shall be thine.*

rem

remPrin. Ed.

*Yes, I accept her, for she well deserues it,
And heere to pledge my Vow, I giue my hand.*

He giues his hand to Warw.

rem

remLew.

*Why stay we now? These soldiers shalbe leuied,
And thou Lord Bourbon, our High Admirall
Shall waft them ouer with our Royall Fleete.
I long till Edward fall by Warres mischance,
For mocking Marriage with a Dame of France.*

Exeunt. Manet Warwicke.

rem

remWar.

*I came from Edward as Ambassador,
But I returne his sworne and mortall Foe:
Matter of Marriage was the charge he gaue me,
But dreadfull Warre shall answer his demand.
Had he none else to make a stale but me?
Then none but I, shall turne his Iest to Sorrow.
I was the Cheefe that rais'd him to the Crowne,
And Ile be Cheefe to bring him downe againe:
Not that I pittie Henries misery,
But seeke Reuenge on Edwards mockery.*

Exit.

Enter Richard, Clarence, Somerset, and Mountague.

rem

remRich.

*Now tell me Brother Clarence, what thinke you
Of this new Marriage with the Lady Gray?
Hath not our Brother made a worthy choice?*

rem

remCla.

*Alas, you know, tis farre from hence to France,
How could he stay till Warwicke made returne?*

rem

remSom.

My Lords, forbear this talke: heere comes the King.

Flourish.

Enter King Edward, Lady Grey, Penbrooke, Staf ford, Hastings: foure stand on one side, and foure on the other.

rem

remRich.

And his well-chosen Bride.

remClarence.

I minde to tell him plainly what I thinke.

rem

remKing.

Now Brother of Clarence,

How like you our Choyce,

That you stand pensiuē, as halfe malecontent?

remClarence.

As well as Lewis of France,

Or the Earle of Warwicke,

Which are so weake of courage, and in iudgement,

That they'le take no offence at our abuse.

rem

remKing.

Suppose they take offence without a cause:

They are but Lewis and Warwicke, I am Edward,

Your King and Warwickes, and must haue my will.

rem

remRich.

And shall haue your will, because our King:

Yet hastie Marriage seldome proueth well.

rem

remKing.

Yea, Brother Richard, are you offended too?

rem

remRich.

Not I: no:

God forbid, that I should wish them seuer'd,

Whom God hath ioyn'd together:

I, and 'twere pittie, to sunder them,

That yoake so well together.

rem

remKing.

*Setting your skornes, and your mislike aside,
Tell me some reason, why the Lady Grey
Should not become my Wife, and Englands Queene?
And you too, Somerset, and Mountague, Speake freely what you thinke.*

remClarence.

Then this is mine opinion:

*That King Lewis becomes your Enemie,
For mocking him about the Marriage Of the Lady Bona.*

rem

remRich.

*And Warwicke, doing what you gaue in charge,
Is now dis-honored by this new Marriage.*

rem

remKing.

*What, if both Lewis and Warwick, be appeas'd,
By such inuention as I can deuise?*

rem

remMount.

*Yet, to haue ioynd with France in such alliance,
Would more haue strenght'ned this our Commonwealth
'Gainst forraine stormes, then any home-bred Marriage.*

rem

remHast.

Why, knowes not Mountague, that of it selfe, England is safe, if true within it selfe?

rem

remMount.

But the safer, when 'tis back'd with France.

rem

remHast.

'Tis better vsing France, then trusting France:

*Let vs be back'd with God, and with the Seas,
Which he hath giu'n for fence impregnable,
And with their helps, onely defend our selues:
In them, and in our selues, our safetie lyes.*

rem

remClar.

*For this one speech, Lord Hastings well deserues
To haue the Heire of the Lord Hungerford.*

rem

remKing.

*I, what of that? it was my will, and graunt,
And for this once, my Will shall stand for Law.*

rem

remRich.

*And yet me thinks, your Grace hath not done well,
To giue the Heire and Daughter of Lord Scales
Vnto the Brother of your louing Bride;
Shee better would haue fitted me, or Clarence:
But in your Bride you burie Brotherhood.*

rem

remClar.

*Or else you would not haue bestow'd the Heire
Of the Lord Bonuill on your new Wiues Sonne,
And leaue your Brothers to goe speede elsewhere.*

rem

remKing.

*Alas, poore Clarence: is it for a Wife
That thou art malecontent? I will prouide thee.*

remClarence.

*In chusing for your selfe,
You shew'd your iudgement:
Which being shallow, you shall giue me leaue
To play the Broker in mine owne behalfe;
And to that end, I shortly minde to leaue you.*

rem

remKing.

*Leaue me, or tarry, Edward will be King,
And not be ty'd vnto his Brothers will.*

rem

remLady Grey.

*My Lords, before it pleas'd his Maiestie
To rayse my state to Title of a Queene,
Doe me but right, and you must all confesse,
That I was not ignoble of Descent,
And meaner then my selfe haue had like fortune.
But as this Title honors me and mine,
So your dislikes, to whom I would be pleasing,
Doth cloud my ioyes with danger, and with sorrow.*

rem

remKing.

*My Loue, forbear to fawne vpon their frownes;
What danger, or what sorrow can befall thee,*

*So long as Edward is thy constant friend,
 And their true Soueraigne, whom they must obey?
 Nay, whom they shall obey, and loue thee too,
 Vnlesse they seeke for hatred at my hands:
 Which if they doe, yet will I keepe thee safe,
 And they shall feele the vengeance of my wrath.*

rem

remRich.

I heare, yet say not much, but thinke the more.

Enter a Poste.

rem

remKing.

Now Messenger, what Letters, or what Newes from France?

rem

remPost.

*My Soueraigne Liege, no Letters, & few words,
 But such, as I (without your speciall pardon) Dare not relate.*

rem

remKing.

Goe too, wee pardon thee:

*Therefore, in briefe, tell me their words,
 As neere as thou canst guesse them.*

What answer makes King Lewis vnto our Letters?

rem

remPost.

At my depart, these were his very words:

*Goe tell false Edward, the supposed King,
 That Lewis of France is sending ouer Maskers,
 To reuell it with him, and his new Bride.*

rem

remKing.

Is Lewis so braue? belike he thinkes me Henry.

But what said Lady Bona to my Marriage?

rem

remPost.

These were her words, vtt'ed with mild disdain:

Tell him, in hope hee'le proue a Widower shortly, Ile weare the Willow Garland for his sake.

rem

remKing.

I blame not her; she could say little lesse:

She had the wrong. But what said Henries Queene?

For I haue heard, that she was there in place.

rem

remPost.

Tell him (quoth she)

My mourning Weedes are done,

And I am readie to put Armour on.

rem

remKing.

Belike she minds to play the Amazon.

But what said Warwicke to these iniuries?

rem

remPost.

He, more incens'd against your Maiestie,

Then all the rest, discharg'd me with these words:

Tell him from me, that he hath done me wrong,

And therefore Ile vncrowne him, er't be long.

rem

remKing.

Ha? durst the Traytor breath out so proud words?

Well, I will arme me, being thus fore-warn'd:

They shall haue Warres, and pay for their presumption.

But say, is Warwicke friends with Margaret?

rem

remPost.

I, gracious Soueraigne,

They are so link'd in friendship,

That yong Prince Edward marryes Warwicks Daughter.

remClarence.

Belike, the elder;

Clarence will haue the younger.

Now Brother King farewell, and sit you fast,

For I will hence to Warwicks other Daughter,

That though I want a Kingdome, yet in Marriage

I may not proue inferior to your selfe.

You that loue me, and Warwicke, follow me.

Exit Clarence, and Somerset followes.

rem

remRich.

Not I:

My thoughts ayme at a further matter:

I stay not for the loue of Edward, but the Crowne.

rem

remKing.

Clarence and Somerset both gone to Warwicke?

Yet am I arm'd against the worst can happen:

And haste is needfull in this desp'rate case.

Pembrooke and Stafford, you in our behalfe.

Goe lewie men, and make prepare for Warre;

They are alreadie, or quickly will be landed:

My selfe in person will straight follow you.

Exeunt Pembrooke and Stafford.

But ere I goe, Hastings and Mountague

Resolue my doubt: you twaine, of all the rest,

Are neere to Warwicke, by his bloud, and by allyance:

Tell me, if you loue Warwicke more then me;

If it be so, then both depart to him:

I rather wish you foes, then hollow friends.

But if you minde to hold your true obedience,

Giue me assurance with some friendly Vow,

That I may neuer haue you in suspect.

rem

remMount.

So God helpe Mountague, as hee proues true.

rem

remHast.

And Hastings, as hee fauours Edwards cause.

rem

remKing.

Now Brother Richard, will you stand by vs?

rem

remRich.

I, in despite of all that shall withstand you.

rem

remKing.

Why so: then am I sure of Victorie.

Now therefore let vs hence, and lose no howre,

Till wee meet Warwicke, with his forreine powre.

Exeunt.

Enter Warwicke and Oxford in England, with French Souldiors.

rem

remWarw.

*Trust me, my Lord, all hitherto goes well,
The common people by numbers swarme to vs.*

Enter Clarence and Somerset.

But see where Somerset and Clarence comes: Speake suddenly, my Lords, are wee all friends?

rem

remClar.

Feare not that, my Lord.

rem

remWarw.

*Then gentle Clarence, welcome vnto Warwicke,
And welcome Somerset: I hold it cowardize,
To rest mistrustfull, where a Noble Heart
Hath pawn'd an open Hand, in signe of Loue;
Else might I thinke, that Clarence, Edwards Brother,
Were but a fained friend to our proceedings:
But welcome sweet Clarence, my Daughter shall be thine.
And now, what rests? but in Nights Couerture,
Thy Brother being carelessly encamp'd,
His Souldiors lurking in the Towne about,
And but attended by a simple Guard,
Wee may surprize and take him at our pleasure,
Our Scouts haue found the aduenture very easie:
That as Vlysses, and stout Diomedes,
With sleight and manhood stole to Rhesus Tents,
And brought from thence the Thracian fatall Steeds;
So wee, well couer'd with the Nights black Mantle,
At vnawares may beat downe Edwards Guard,
And seize himselfe: I say not, slaughter him,
For I intend but onely to surprize him.
You that will follow me to this attempt,
Applaud the Name of Henry, with your Leader.*

They all cry, Henry.

*Why then, let's on our way in silent sort,
For Warwicke and his friends, God and Saint George.*

Exeunt.

Enter three Watchmen to guard the Kings Tent.

rem

rem1. Watch.

*Come on my Masters, each man take his stand,
The King by this, is set him downe to sleepe.
rem*

rem2. Watch.

*What, will he not to Bed?
rem*

rem1. Watch.

*Why, no: for he hath made a solemne Vow,
Neuer to lye and take his naturall Rest,
Till Warwicke, or himselfe, be quite suppress.
rem*

rem2. Watch.

*To morrow then belike shall be the day,
If Warwicke be so neere as men report.
rem*

rem3. Watch.

*But say, I pray, what Noble man is that,
That with the King here resteth in his Tent?
rem*

rem1. Watch.

*'Tis the Lord Hastings, the Kings chiefest friend.
rem*

rem3. Watch.

*O, is it so? but why commands the King,
That his chiefe followers lodge in Townes about him,
While he himselfe keepes in the cold field?
rem*

rem2. Watch.

*'Tis the more honour, because more dange rous.
rem*

rem3. Watch.

*I, but giue me worship, and quietnesse,
I like it better then a dangerous honor.
If Warwicke knew in what estate he stands,
'Tis to be doubted he would waken him.*

rem

rem1. Watch.

*Vnlesse our Halberds did shut vp his pas sage.
rem*

rem2. Watch.

*I: wherefore else guard we his Royall Tent,
But to defend his Person from Night-foes?*

*Enter Warwicke, Clarence, Oxford, Somerset, and French Souldiors, silent all.
rem*

remWarw.

*This is his Tent, and see where stand his Guard;
Courage my Masters: Honor now, or neuer:
But follow me, and Edward shall be ours.*

rem

rem1. Watch.

Who goes there?

rem

rem2. Watch.

Stay, or thou dyest.

Warwicke and the rest cry all, Warwicke, Warwicke, and set vpon the Guard, who flye, crying, Arme, Arme, Warwicke and the rest following them.

The Drumme playing, and Trumpet sounding. Enter Warwicke, Somerset, and the rest, bringing the King out in his Gowne, sitting in a Chaire: Richard and Hastings flyes ouer the Stage.

rem

remSom.

What are they that flye there?

rem

remWarw.

Richard and Hastings: let them goe, heere is the Duke.

rem

remK. Edw.

The Duke?

Why Warwicke, when wee parted, Thou call'dst me King.

rem

remWarw.

I, but the case is alter'd.

*When you disgrac'd me in my Embassade,
Then I degraded you from being King,
And come now to create you Duke of Yorke.
Alas, how should you gouerne any Kingdome,
That know not how to use Embassadors,
Nor how to be contented with one Wife,
Nor how to use your Brothers Brotherly,
Nor how to studie for the Peoples Welfare,
Nor how to shrowd your selfe from Enemies?*

rem

remK. Edw.

Yea, Brother of Clarence,

Art thou here too?

Nay then I see, that Edward needs must downe.

*Yet Warwicke, in despight of all mischance,
Of thee thy selfe, and all thy Complices,
Edward will always beare himselfe as King:
Though Fortunes mallice ouerthrow my State,
My minde exceedes the compasse of her Wheele.*

rem

remWarw.

Then for his minde, be Edward Englands King, Takes off his Crowne.

*But Henry now shall weare the English Crowne,
And be true King indeede: thou but the shadow.
My Lord of Somerset, at my request,
See that forthwith Duke Edward be conuey'd Vnto my Brother Arch-Bishop of Yorke:
When I haue fought with Pembrooke, and his fellowes,
Ile follow you, and tell what answer
Lewis and the Lady Bona send to him.
Now for a-while farewell good Duke of Yorke.*

They leade him out forcibly.

rem

remK. Ed.

*What Fates impose, that men must needs abide;
It boots not to resist both winde and tide.*

Exeunt.

rem

remOxf.

*What now remaines my Lords for vs to do,
But march to London with our Soldiers?*

rem

remWar.

*I, that's the first thing that we haue to do,
To free King Henry from imprisonment,
And see him seated in the Regall Throne.*

exit.

Enter Riwers, and Lady Gray.

rem

remRiu.

*Madam, what makes you in this sodain change?
rem*

remGray.

*Why Brother Riuers, are you yet to learne
What late misfortune is befallne King Edward?*

rem

remRiu.

What losse of some pitcht battell Against Warwicke?

rem

remGray.

No, but the losse of his owne Royall person.

rem

remRiu.

Then is my Soueraigne slaine?

rem

remGray.

*I almost slaine, for he is taken prisoner,
Either betrayd by falshood of his Guard,
Or by his Foe surpriz'd at vnawares:
And as I further haue to vnderstand,
Is new committed to the Bishop of Yorke, Fell Warwickes Brother, and by that our Foe.*

rem

remRiu.

*These Newes I must confesse are full of greefe, Yet gracious Madam, beare it as you may,
Warwicke may loose, that now hath wonne the day.*

rem

remGray.

*Till then, faire hope must hinder liues decay:
And I the rather waine me from dispaire
For loue of Edwards Off-spring in my wombe:
This is it that makes me bridle passion,
And beare with Mildnesse my misfortunes crosse:
I, I, for this I draw in many a teare,
And stop the rising of blood-sucking sighes,
Least with my sighes or teares, I blast or drowne
King Edwards Fruite, true heyre to th'English Crowne.*

rem

remRiu.

But Madam, Where is Warwicke then become?

rem

remGray.

I am inform'd that he comes towards London,

*To set the Crowne once more on Henries head, Guesse thou the rest, King Edwards Friends must downe.
 But to preuent the Tyrants violence,
 (For trust not him that hath once broken Faith)
 Ile hence forthwith vnto the Sanctuary,
 To saue (at least) the heire of Edwards right:
 There shall I rest secure from force and fraud:
 Come therefore let vs flye, while we may flye,
 If Warwicke take vs, we are sure to dye.*

exeunt.

Enter Richard, Lord Hastings, and Sir William Stanley.

rem

remRich.

*Now my Lord Hastings, and Sir William Stanley
 Leaue off to wonder why I drew you hither,
 Into this cheefest Thicket of the Parke.
 Thus stand the case: you know our King, my Brother,
 Is prisoner to the Bishop here, at whose hands
 He hath good vsage, and great liberty,
 And often but attended with weake guard,
 Come hunting this way to disport himselfe.
 I haue aduertis'd him by secret meanes,
 That if about this houre he make this way,
 Vnder the colour of his vsuall game,
 He shall heere finde his Friends with Horse and Men,
 To set him free from his Captiuitie.*

Enter King Edward, and a Huntsman with him.

rem

remHuntsman.

*This way my Lord,
 For this way lies the Game.*

rem

remKing Edw.

*Nay this way man,
 See where the Huntsmen stand.
 Now Brother of Gloster, Lord Hastings, and the rest, Stand you thus close to steale the Bishops Deere?*

rem

remRich.

*Brother, the time and case, requireth hast,
Your horse stands ready at the Parke-corner.*

rem

remKing Ed.

But whether shall we then?

rem

remHast.

To Lyn my Lord,

And shipt from thence to Flanders.

rem

remRich.

Wel guest beleeue me, for that was my meaning

rem

remK. Ed.

Stanley, I will requite thy forwardnesse.

rem

remRich.

But wherefore stay we? 'tis no time to talke.

rem

remK. Ed.

Huntsman, what say'st thou?

Wilt thou go along?

rem

remHunts.

Better do so, then tarry and be hang'd.

rem

remRich.

Come then away, lets ha no more adoo.

rem

remK. Ed.

Bishop farwell,

Sheeld thee from Warwickes frowne,

And pray that I may re-possesse the Crowne.

exeunt

Flourish. Enter King Henry the sixt, Clarence, Warwicke, Somerset, young Henry, Oxford, Mountague, and Lieutenant.

rem

remK. Hen.

*Master¹¹ Lieutenant, now that God and Friends
Haue shaken Edward from the Regall seate,
And turn'd my captiue state to libertie,
My feare to hope, my sorrowes vnto ioyes,*

¹¹M.

At our enlargement what are thy due Fees?

rem

remLieu.

Subiects may challenge nothing of their Sou'rains

But, if an humble prayer may preuaile,

I then craue pardon of your Maiestie.

rem

remK. Hen.

For what, Lieutenant? For well using me?

Nay, be thou sure, Ile well requite thy kindnesse.

For that it made my imprisonment, a pleasure:

I, such a pleasure, as incaged Birds

Conceiue; when after many moody Thoughts,

At last, by Notes of Houshold harmonie,

They quite forget their losse of Libertie.

But Warwicke, after God, thou set'st me free,

And chiefly therefore, I thanke God, and thee,

He was the Author, thou the Instrument.

Therefore that I may conquer Fortunes spight,

By liuing low, where Fortune cannot hurt me,

And that the people of this blessed Land

May not be punisht with my thwarting starres,

Warwicke, although my Head still weare the Crowne,

I here resigne my Gouernment to thee,

For thou art fortunate in all thy deeds.

rem

remWarw.

Your Grace hath still beene fam'd for vertuous,

And now may seeme as wise as vertuous,

By spying and auoiding Fortunes malice,

For few men rightly temper with the Starres:

Yet in this one thing let me blame your Grace,

For chusing me, when Clarence is in place.

rem

remClar.

No Warwicke, thou art worthy of the sway,

To whom the Heau'ns in thy Natiuitie,

Adiudg'd an Oliue Branch, and Lawrell Crowne,

As likely to be blest in Peace and Warre:

And therefore I yeeld thee my free consent.

rem

remWarw.

And I chuse Clarence onely for Protector.

rem

remKing.

Warwick and Clarence, giue me both your Hands:

Now ioyne your Hands, & with your Hands your Hearts,

That no dissention hinder Gouernment:

I make you both Protectors of this Land,

While I my selfe will lead a priuate Life,

And in deuotion spend my latter dayes,

To sinnes rebuke, and my Creators prayse.

rem

remWarw.

What answeres Clarence to his Soueraignes will?

rem

remClar.

That he consents, if Warwicke yeeld consent,

For on thy fortune I repose my selfe.

rem

remWarw.

Why then, though loth, yet must I be content:

Wee'le yoake together, like a double shadow

To Henries Body, and supply his place;

I meane, in bearing weight of Gouernment,

While he enioyes the Honor, and his ease.

And Clarence, now then it is more then needfull,

Forthwith that Edward be pronounc'd a Traytor,

And all his Lands and Goods confiscate.

rem

remClar.

What else? and that Succession be determined.

rem

remWarw.

I, therein Clarence shall not want his part.

rem

remKing.

But with the first, of all your chiefe affaires,

Let me entreat (for I command no more)

That Margaret your Queene, and my Sonne Edward,

Be sent for, to returne from France with speed:

For till I see them here, by doubtfull feare,

My ioy of libertie is halfe eclips'd.

rem

remClar.

It shall bee done, my Soueraigne, with all speede.

rem

remKing.

My Lord of Somerset, what Youth is that,

Of whom you seeme to haue so tender care?

rem

remSomers.

My Liege, it is young Henry, Earle of Rich mond.

rem

remKing.

Come hither, Englands Hope:

Layes his Hand on his Head.

If secret Powers suggest but truth

To my diuining thoughts,

This prettie Lad will proue our Countries blisse.

His Lookes are full of peacefull Maiestie,

His Head by nature fram'd to weare a Crowne,

His Hand to wield a Scepter, and himselfe

Likely in time to blesse a Regall Throne:

Make much of him, my Lords; for this is hee

Must helpe you more, then you are hurt by mee.

Enter a Poste.

rem

remWarw.

What newes, my friend?

remPoste.

That Edward is escaped from your Brother,

And fled (as hee heares since) to Burgundie.

rem

remWarw.

Vnsauorie newes: but how made he escape?

remPoste.

He was conuey'd by Richard, Duke of Gloster,

And the Lord Hastings, who attended him

In secret ambush, on the Forrest side,

And from the Bishops Huntsmen rescu'd him:

For Hunting was his dayly Exercise.

rem

remWarw.

My Brother was too carelesse of his charge.

*But let vs hence, my Soueraigne, to prouide
A salue for any sore, that may betide.*

Exeunt.

Manet Somerset, Richmond, and Oxford.

rem

remSom.

*My Lord, I like not of this flight of Edwards:
For doubtlesse, Burgundie will yeeld him helpe,
And we shall haue more Warres befor't be long.
As Henries late presaging Prophecie
Did glad my heart, with hope of this young Richmond:
So doth my heart mis-giue me, in these Conflicts,
What may befall him, to his harme and ours.
Therefore, Lord Oxford, to preuent the worst,
Forthwith wee'le send him hence to Brittanie,
Till stormes be past of Ciuill Enmitie.*

rem

remOxf.

*I: for if Edward re-possesse the Crowne,
'Tis like that Richmond, with the rest, shall downe.*

rem

remSom.

*It shall be so: he shall to Brittanie.
Come therefore, let's about it speedily.*

Exeunt.

Flourish. Enter Edward, Richard, Hastings, and Souldiers.

rem

remEdw.

*Now Brother Richard, Lord Hastings, and the rest,
Yet thus farre Fortune maketh vs amends,
And sayes, that once more I shall enterchange
My wained state, for Henries Regall Crowne.
Well haue we pass'd, and now re-pass'd the Seas,
And brought desired helpe from Burgundie.
What then remaines, we being thus arriu'd
From Rauenspurre Hauen, before the Gates of Yorke,
But that we enter, as into our Dukedome?*

rem

remRich.

The Gates made fast?

Brother, I like not this.

For many men that stumble at the Threshold,

Are well fore-told, that danger lurkes within.

rem

remEdw.

Tush man, aboardments must not now affright vs:

By faire or foule meanes we must enter in,

For hither will our friends repaire to vs.

rem

remHast.

My Liege, Ile knocke once more, to summon them.

Enter on the Walls, the Maior of Yorke, and his Brethren.

rem

remMaior.

My Lords,

We were fore-warned of your comming,

And shut the Gates, for safetie of our selues;

For now we owe allegiance vnto Henry.

rem

remEdw.

But, Master Maior, if Henry be your King,

Yet Edward, at the least, is Duke of Yorke.

rem

remMaior.

True, my good Lord, I know you for no lesse.

rem

remEdw.

Why, and I challenge nothing but my Dukedome,

As being well content with that alone.

rem

remRich.

But when the Fox hath once got in his Nose,

Hee'le soone finde meanes to make the Body follow.

rem

remHast.

Why, Master Maior, why stand you in a doubt?

Open the Gates, we are King Henries friends.

rem

remMaior.

I, say you so? the Gates shall then be opened.

He descends.

rem

remRich.

A wise stout Captaine, and soone perswaded.

rem

remHast.

*The good old man would faine that all were wel,
So 'twere not long of him: but being entred,
I doubt not I, but we shall soone perswade
Both him, and all his Brothers, vnto reason.*

Enter the Maior, and two Aldermen.

rem

remEdw.

*So, Master Maior: these Gates must not be shut,
But in the Night, or in the time of Warre.
What, feare not man, but yeeld me vp the Keyes,*

Takes his Keyes.

*For Edward will defend the Towne, and thee,
And all those friends, that deine to follow mee.*

March. Enter Mountgomerie, with Drumme and Souldiers.

rem

remRich.

*Brother, this is Sir Iohn Mountgomerie,
Our trustie friend, vnlesse I be deceiu'd.*

rem

remEdw.

Welcome Sir Iohn: but why come you in Armes?

rem

remMount.

*To helpe King Edward in his time of storme,
As euery loyall Subiect ought to doe.*

rem

remEdw.

Thankes good Mountgomerie:

*But we now forget our Title to the Crowne,
And onely clayme our Dukedome,
Till God please to send the rest.*

rem

remMount.

*Then fare you well, for I will hence againe,
I came to serue a King, and not a Duke:
Drummer strike vp, and let vs march away.*

The Drumme begins to march.

rem

remEdw.

Nay stay, Sir Iohn, a while, and wee'le debate

By what safe meanes the Crowne may be recouer'd.

rem

remMount.

What talke you of debating? in few words,

If you'le not here proclaime your selfe our King,

Ile leaue you to your fortune, and be gone,

To keepe them back, that come to succour you.

Why shall we fight, if you pretend no Title?

rem

remRich.

Why Brother, wherefore stand you on nice points?

rem

remEdw.

When wee grow stronger,

Then wee'le make our Clayme:

Till then, 'tis wisdome to conceale our meaning.

rem

remHast.

Away with scrupulous Wit, now Armes must rule.

rem

remRich.

And fearelesse minds clyme soonest vnto Crowns.

Brother, we will proclaime you out of hand,

The bruit thereof will bring you many friends.

rem

remEdw.

Then be it as you will: for 'tis my right,

And Henry but vsurpes the Diademe.

rem

remMount.

I, now my Soueraigne speaketh like himselfe,

And now will I be Edwards Champion.

rem

remHast.

Sound Trumpet, Edward shal be here proclaim'd:

Come, fellow Souldior, make thou proclamation.

Flourish. Sound.

rem

remSoul.

Edward the Fourth, by the Grace of Cod, King of England and France, and Lord of Ireland, &c.

rem

remMount.

*And whosoe're gainsays King Edwards right,
By this I challenge him to single fight.*

Throwes downe his Gauntlet.

rem

remAll.

Long liue Edward the Fourth.

rem

remEdw.

Thankes braue Montgomery,

And thankes vnto you all:

If fortune serue me, Ile requite this kindnesse.

Now for this Night, let's harbor here in Yorke:

And when the Morning Sunne shall rayse his Carre

About the Border of this Horizon,

Wee'le forward towards Warwicke, and his Mates;

For well I wot, that Henry is no Souldier.

Ah froward Clarence, how euill it beseemes thee,

To flatter Henry, and forsake thy Brother?

Yet as wee may, wee'le meet both thee and Warwicke.

Come on braue Souldiors: doubt not of the Day,

And that once gotten, doubt not of large Pay.

Exeunt.

Flourish. Enter the King, Warwicke, Mountague, Clarence, Oxford, and Somerset.

rem

remWar.

What counsaile, Lords? Edward from Belgia,

With hastie Germanes, and blunt Hollanders,

Hath pass'd in safetie through the Narrow Seas,

And with his troupes doth march amaine to London,

And many giddie people flock to him.

rem

remKing.

Let's leuie men, and beat him backe againe.

rem

remClar.

A little fire is quickly trodden out,

Which being suffer'd, Riuers cannot quench.

rem

remWar.

*In Warwickshire I haue true-hearted friends,
 Not mutinous in peace, yet bold in Warre,
 Those will I muster vp: and thou Sonne Clarence Shalt stirre vp in Suffolke, Norfolke, and in Kent,
 The Knights and Gentlemen, to come with thee.
 Thou Brother Mountague, in Buckingham, Northampton, and in Leicestershire, shalt find Men well enclin'd to heare what thou command'st.
 And thou, braue Oxford, wondrous well belou'd,
 In Oxfordshire shalt muster vp thy friends.
 My Soueraigne, with the louing Citizens,
 Like to his Iland, gyrt in with the Ocean,
 Or modest Dyan, circled with her Nymphs,
 Shall rest in London, till we come to him:
 Faire Lords take leaue, and stand not to reply.
 Farewell my Soueraigne.*

rem

remKing.

Farewell my Hector, and my Troyes true hope.

rem

remClar.

In signe of truth, I kisse your Highnesse Hand.

rem

remKing.

Well-minded Clarence, be thou fortunate.

rem

remMount.

Comfort, my Lord, and so I take my leaue.

rem

remOxf.

And thus I seale my truth, and bid adieu.

rem

remKing.

*Sweet Oxford, and my louing Mountague,
 And all at once, once more a happy farewell.*

rem

remWar.

Farewell, sweet Lords, let's meet at Couentry.

Exeunt.

rem

remKing.

Here at the Pallace will I rest a while.

Cousin of Exeter, what thinks your Lordship?

Me thinkes, the Power that Edward hath in field,

Should not be able to encounter mine.

rem

remExet.

The doubt is, that he will seduce the rest.

rem

remKing.

That's not my feare, my meed hath got me fame:

I haue not stopt mine eares to their demands,

Nor posted off their suites with slow delayes,

My pittie hath beene balme to heale their wounds,

My mildnesse hath allay'd their swelling griefes,

My mercie dry'd their water-flowing teares.

I haue not been desirous of their wealth,

Nor much opprest them with great Subsidies,

Nor forward of reuenge, though they much err'd.

Then why should they loue Edward more then me?

No Exeter, these Graces challenge Grace:

And when the Lyon fawnes vpon the Lambe,

The Lambe will neuer cease to follow him.

Shout within, A Lancaster, A Lancaster.

rem

remExet.

Hearke, hearke, my Lord, what Shouts are these?

Enter Edward and his Souldiers.

rem

remEdw.

Seize on the shamefac'd Henry, beare him hence,

And once agane proclaime vs King of England.

You are the Fount that makes small Brookes to flow,

Now stops thy Spring, my Sea shall suck them dry,

And swell so much the higher, by their ebbe.

Hence with him to the Tower, let him not speake.

Exit with King Henry.

And Lords, towards Couentry bend we our course,

Where peremptorie Warwicke now remaines:

The Sunne shines hot, and if we vse delay,

Cold biting Winter marres our hop'd-for Hay.

rem

remRich.

Away betimes before his forces ioyne,

And take the great-growne Traytor vnawares:

Braue Warriors, march amaine towards Couentry.

Exeunt.

Enter Warwicke, the Maior of Couentry, two Messengers and others vpon the Walls.

rem

remWar.

Where is the Post that came from valiant Oxford?

How farre hence is thy Lord, mine honest fellow?

rem

remMess. 1.

By this at Dunsmore, marching hitherward.

rem

remWar.

How farre off is our Brother Mountague?

Where is the Post that came from Mountague?

rem

remMess. 2.

By this at Daintry, with a puissant troope.

Enter Someruile.

rem

remWar.

Say Someruile, what sayes my louing Sonne?

And by thy guesse, how nigh is Clarence now?

rem

remSomeru.

At Southam I did leaue him with his forces,

And doe expect him here some two howres hence.

rem

remWar.

Then Clarence is at hand, I heare his Drumme.

rem

remSomeru.

It is not his, my Lord, here Southam lyes:

The Drum your Honor heares, marcheth from Warwicke.

rem

remWar.

Who should that be? belike vnlook'd for friends.

rem

remSomeru.

They are at hand, and you shall quickly know.

March. Flourish. Enter Edward, Richard, and Souldiers.

rem

remEdw.

Goe, Trumpet, to the Walls, and sound a Parle.

rem

remRich.

See how the surly Warwicke mans the Wall.

rem

remWar.

Oh vnbid spight, is sportfull Edward come?

Where slept our Scouts, or how are they seduc'd,

That we could heare no newes of his repayre.

rem

remEdw.

*Now Warwicke, wilt thou ope the Citie Gates, Speake gentle words, and humbly bend thy Knee,
Call Edward King, and at his hands begge Mercy,
And thou shall pardon thee these Outrages?*

rem

remWar.

*Nay rather, wilt thou draw thy forces hence,
Confesse who set thee vp, and pluckt thee downe,
Call Warwicke Patron, and be penitent,
And thou shalt still remaine the Duke of Yorke.*

rem

remRich.

*I thought at least he would haue said the King,
Or did he makes the least against his will?*

rem

remWar.

Is not a Dukedome, Sir, a goodly gift?

rem

remRich.

*I, by my faith, for a poore Earle to giue,
Ile doe thee seruice for so good a gift.*

rem

remWar.

'Twas I that gaue the Kingdome to thy Bro ther.

rem

remEdw.

Why then 'tis mine, if but by Warwikes gift.

rem

remWar.

*Thou art no Atlas for so great a Weight:
And Weakeling, Warwicke takes his gift againe,
And Henry is my King, Warwicke his Subiect.*

rem

remEdw.

*But Warwicks King is Edwards Prisoner:
And gallant Warwicke, doe but answer this,
What is the Body, when the Head is off?*

rem

remRich.

*Alas, that Warwicke had no more fore-cast,
But whiles he thought to steale the single Ten,
The King was slyly finger'd from the Deck:
You left poore Henry at the Bishops Pallace,
And tenne to one you'le meet him in the Tower.*

rem

remEdw.

'Tis euen so, yet you are Warwicke still.

rem

remRich.

*Come Warwicke,
Take the time, kneele downe, kneele downe:
Nay when? strike now, or else the Iron cooles.*

rem

remWar.

*I had rather chop this Hand off at a blow,
And with the other, fling it at thy face,
Then beare so low a sayle, to strike to thee.*

rem

remEdw.

*Sayle how thou canst,
Haue Winde and Tyde thy friend,
This Hand, fast wound about thy coale-black hayre,
Shall, whiles thy Head is warme, and new cut off,
Write in the dust this Sentence with thy blood,
Wind-changing Warwicke now can change no more.*

Enter Oxford, with Drumme and Colours.

rem

remWar.

Oh chearefull Colours, see where Oxford comes.

rem

remOxf.

Oxford, Oxford, for Lancaster.

rem

remRich.

The Gates are open, let vs enter too.

rem

remEdw.

So other foes may set vpon our backs.

Stand we in good array: for they no doubt

Will issue out againe, and bid vs battaile;

If not, the Citie being but of small defence,

Wee'le quickly rowze the Traitors in the same.

rem

remWar.

Oh welcome Oxford, for we want thy helpe.

Enter Mountague, with Drumme and Colours.

rem

remMount.

Mountague, Mountague, for Lancaster.

rem

remRich.

Thou and thy Brother both shall buy this Treason

Euen with the dearest blood your bodies beare.

rem

remEdw.

The harder matcht, the greater Victorie,

My minde presageth happy gaine, and Conquest.

Enter Somerset, with Drumme and Colours.

rem

remSom.

Somerset, Somerset, for Lancaster.

rem

remRich.

Two of thy Name, both Dukes of Somerset,

Haue sold their Liues vnto the House of Yorke,

And thou shalt be the third, if this Sword hold.

Enter Clarence, with Drumme and Colours.

rem

remWar.

And loe, where George of Clarence sweepes along,

Of force enough to bid his Brother Battaile:

With whom, in vpright zeale to right, preuailes

More then the nature of a Brothers Loue.

Come Clarence, come: thou wilt, if Warwicke call.

rem

remClar.

Father of Warwick, know you what this meanes?

Looke here, I throw my infamie at thee:

I will not ruinate my Fathers House,

Who gaue his blood to lyme the stones together,

And set vp Lancaster. Why, trowest thou, Warwicke,

That Clarence is so harsh, so blunt, vnnatural,

To bend the fatall Instruments of Warre

Against his Brother, and his lawfull King.

Perhaps thou wilt obiect my holy Oath:

To keepe that Oath, were more impietie,

Then Iephah, when he sacrific'd his Daughter.

I am so sorry for my Trespas made,

That to deserue well at my Brothers hands,

I here proclayme my selfe thy mortall foe:

With resolution, wheresoe're I meet thee,

(As I will meet thee, if thou stirre abroad)

To plague thee, for thy foule mis-leading me.

And so, proude-hearted Warwicke, I defie thee,

And to my Brother turne my blushing Cheekes.

Pardon me Edward, I will make amends:

And Richard, doe not frowne vpon my faults,

For I will henceforth be no more vnconstant.

rem

remEdw.

Now welcome more, and ten times more belou'd,

Then if thou neuer hadst deseru'd our hate.

rem

remRich.

Welcome good Clarence, this is Brother-like.

rem

remWarw.

Oh passing Traytor, periur'd and vniust.

rem

remEdw.

What Warwicke,

Wilt thou leaue the Towne, and fight?

Or shall we beat the Stones about thine Eares?

rem

remWarw.

*Alas, I am not coop'd here for defence:
I will away towards Barnet presently,
And bid thee Battaile, Edward, if thou dar'st.*

rem

remEdw.

*Yes Warwicke, Edward dares, and leads the way:
Lords to the field: Saint George, and Victorie.*

Exeunt.

March. Warwicke and his companie followes.

Alarum, and Excursions. Enter Edward bringing forth Warwicke wounded.

rem

remEdw.

*So, lye thou there: dye thou, and dye our feare,
For Warwicke was a Bugge that fear'd vs all.
Now Mountague sit fast, I seeke for thee,
That Warwickes Bones may keepe thine companie.*

Exit.

rem

remWarw.

*Ah, who is nigh? come to me, friend, or foe,
And tell me who is Victor, Yorke, or Warwicke?
Why aske I that? my mangled body shewes,
My blood, my want of strength, my sicke heart shewes,
That I must yeeld my body to the Earth,
And by my fall, the conquest to my foe.
Thus yeelds the Cedar to the Axes edge,
Whose Armes gaue shelter to the Princely Eagle,
Vnder whose shade the ramping Lyon slept,
Whose top-branch ouer-peer'd Ioues spreading Tree,
And kept low Shrubs from Winters pow'rfull Winde.
These Eyes, that now are dim'd with Deaths black Veyle, Haue beene as piercing as the Mid-day Sunne,
To search the secret Treasons of the World:
The Wrinckles in my Browes, now fill'd with blood,
Were lik'ned oft to Kingly Sepulchers:
For who liu'd King, but I could digge his Graue?
And who durst smile, when Warwicke bent his Brow?*

*Loe, now my Glory smear'd in dust and blood.
 My Parkes, my Walkes, my Mannors that I had,
 Euen now forsake me, and of all my Lands,
 Is nothing left me, but my bodies length.
 Why, what is Pompe, Rule, Reigne, but Earth and Dust?
 And liue we how we can, yet dye we must.*

Enter Oxford and Somerset.

rem

remSom.

*Ah Warwicke, Warwicke, wert thou as we are,
 We might recouer all our Losse againe:
 The Queene from France hath brought a puissant power.
 Euen now we heard the newes: ah, could'st thou flye.*

rem

remWarw.

*Why then I would not flye. Ah Mountague,
 If thou be there, sweet Brother, take my Hand,
 And with thy Lippes keepe in my Soule a while.
 Thou lou'st me not: for, Brother, if thou didst,
 Thy teares would wash this cold congealed blood,
 That glewes my Lippes, and will not let me speake.
 Come quickly Mountague, or I am dead.*

rem

remSom.

*Ah Warwicke, Mountague hath breath'd his last,
 And to the latest gaspe, cry'd out for Warwicke:
 And said, Commend me to my valiant Brother.
 And more he would haue said, and more he spoke,
 Which sounded like a Cannon in a Vault,
 That mought not be distinguisht: but at last,
 I well might heare, deliuered with a groane,

rem

remWarw.

*Sweet rest his Soule:
 Flye Lords, and saue your selues,
 For Warwicke bids you all farewell, to meet in Heauen.*

rem

remOxf.

Away, away, to meet the Queenes great power.

Here they beare away his Body.

Exeunt.

Flourish. Enter King Edward in triumph, with Richard, Clarence, and the rest.

rem

remKing.

*Thus farre our fortune keepes an vpward course,
And we are grac'd with wreaths of Victorie:
But in the midst of this bright-shining Day;
I spy a black suspicious threatning Cloud,
That will encounter with our glorious Sunne,
Ere he attaine his easefull Western Bed:
I meane, my Lords, those powers that the Queene
Hath rays'd in Gallia, haue arriued our Coast,
And, as we heare, march on to fight with vs.*

rem

remClar.

*A little gale will soone disperse that Cloud,
And blow it to the Source from whence it came,
Thy very Beames will dry those Vapours vp,
For euery Cloud engenders not a Storme.*

rem

remRich.

*The Queene is valued thirtie thousand strong,
And Somerset, with Oxford, fled to her:
If she haue time to breathe, be well assur'd
Her faction will be full as strong as ours.*

rem

remKing.

*We are aduertis'd by our louing friends,
That they doe hold their course toward Tewksbury.
We hauing now the best at Barnet field,
Will thither straight, for willingnesse rids way,
And as we march, our strength will be augmented:
In euery Countie as we goe along,
Strike vp the Drumme, cry courage, and away.*

Exeunt.

Flourish. March. Enter the Queene, young Edward, Somerset, Oxford, and Souldiers.

rem

remQu.

*Great Lords, wise men ne'r sit and waile their losse,
But chearely seeke how to redresse their harmes.
What though the Mast be now blowne ouer-boord,
The Cable broke, the holding-Anchor lost,
And halfe our Saylor's swallow'd in the flood?
Yet liues our Pilot still. Is't meet, that hee
Should leaue the Helme, and like a fearefull Lad,
With tearefull Eyes adde Water to the Sea,
And giue more strength to that which hath too much,
Whiles in his moane, the Ship splits on the Rock,
Which Industrie and Courage might haue sau'd?
Ah what a shame, ah what a fault were this.
Say Warwicke was our Anchor: what of that?
And Mountague our Top-Mast: what of him?
Our slaught' red friends, the Tackles: what of these?
Why is not Oxford here, another Anchor?
And Somerset, another goodly Mast?
The friends of France our Shrowds and Tacklings?
And though vnskilfull, why not Ned and I,
For once allow'd the skilfull Pilots Charge?
We will not from the Helme, to sit and weepe,
But keepe our Course (though the rough Winde say no)
From Shelues and Rocks, that threaten vs with Wrack.
As good to chide the Waues, as speake them faire.
And what is Edward, but a ruthlesse Sea?
What Clarence, but a Quick-sand of Deceit?
And Richard, but a raged fatall Rocke?
All these, the Enemies to our poore Barke.
Say you can swim, alas 'tis but a while:
Tread on the Sand, why there you quickly sinke, Bestride the Rock, the Tyde will wash you off,
Or else you famish, that's a three-fold Death.
This speake I (Lords) to let you vnderstand,
If case some one of you would flye from vs,*

*That there's no hop'd-for Mercy with the Brothers,
More then with ruthlesse Waues, with Sands and Rocks.
Why courage then, what cannot be auoided,
'Twere childish weakenesse to lament, or feare.*

rem

remPrince.

*Me thinkes a Woman of this valiant Spirit,
Should, if a Coward heard her speake these words,
Infuse his Breast with Magnanimitie,
And make him, naked, foyle a man at Armes.
I speake not this, as doubting any here:
For did I but suspect a fearefull man,
He should haue leaue to goe away betimes,
Least in our need he might infect another,
And make him of like spirit to himselfe.
If any such be here, as God forbid,
Let him depart, before we neede his helpe.*

rem

remOxf.

*Women and Children of so high a courage,
And Warriors faint, why 'twere perpetuall shame.
Oh braue young Prince: thy famous Grandfather Doth liue againe in thee; long may'st thou liue,
To beare his Image, and renew his Glories.*

rem

remSom.

*And he that will not fight for such a hope,
Goe home to Bed, and like the Owle by day,
If he arise, be mock'd and wondred at.*

rem

remQu.

Thankes gentle Somerset, sweet Oxford thankes.

rem

remPrince.

And take his thankes, that yet hath nothing else.

Enter a Messenger.

rem

remMess.

*Prepare you Lords, for Edward is at hand,
Readie to fight: therefore be resolute.*

rem

remOxf.

*I thought no lesse: it is his Policie,
To haste thus fast, to finde vs unprouided.*

rem

remSom.

But hee's deceiu'd, we are in readinesse.

rem

remQu.

This cheares my heart, to see your forwardnesse.

rem

remOxf.

Here pitch our Battaile, hence we will not budge.

Flourish, and march. Enter Edward, Richard, Clarence, and Souldiers.

rem

remEdw.

*Braue followers, yonder stands the thornie Wood,
Which by the Heauens assistance, and your strength,
Must by the Roots be hew'ne vp yet ere Night.
I need not adde more fuell to your fire,
For well I wot, ye blaze, to burne them out:
Giue signall to the fight, and to it Lords.*

rem

remQu.

*Lords, Knights, and Gentlemen, what I should say,
My teares gaine-say: for euery word I speake,
Ye see I drinke the water of my eye.
Therefore no more but this: Henry your Soueraigne
Is Prisoner to the Foe, his State usurp'd,
His Realme a slaughter-house, his Subiects slaine,
His Statutes cancell'd, and his Treasure spent:
And yonder is the Wolfe, that makes this spoyle.
You fight in Iustice: then in Gods Name, Lords,
Be valiant, and giue signall to the fight.*

Alarum, Retreat, Excursions.

Exeunt.

Flourish. Enter Edward, Richard, Queene, Clarence, Oxford, Somerset.

rem

remEdw.

Now here a period of tumultuous Broyles.

Away with Oxford to Hames Castle straight:

For Somerset, off with his guiltie Head.

Goe beare them hence, I will not heare them speake.

rem

remOxf.

For my part, Ile not trouble thee with words.

rem

remSom.

Nor I, but stoupe with patience to my fortune.

Exeunt.

rem

remQu.

*So part we sadly in this troublous World,
To meet with Ioy in sweet Ierusalem.*

rem

remEdw.

*Is Proclamation made, That who finds Edward,
Shall haue a high Reward, and he his Life?*

rem

remRich.

It is, and loe where youthfull Edward comes.

Enter the Prince.

rem

remEdw.

*Bring forth the Gallant, let vs heare him speake.
What? can so young a Thorne begin to prick?
Edward, what satisfaction canst thou make,
For bearing Armes, for stirring up my Subiects,
And all the trouble thou hast turn'd me to?*

rem

remPrince.

*Speake like a Subiect, proud ambitious Yorke.
Suppose that I am now my Fathers Mouth,
Resigne thy Chayre, and where I stand, kneele thou,
Whil'st I propose the selfe-same words to thee,
Which (Traytor) thou would'st haue me answer to.*

rem

remQu.

Ah, that thy Father had beene so resolu'd.

rem

remRich.

*That you might still haue worne the Petticoat,
And ne're haue stolne the Breech from Lancaster.*

rem

remPrince.

*Let Æsop fable in a Winters Night,
His Currish Riddles sorts not with this place.*

rem

remRich.

By Heauen, Brat, Ile plague ye for that word.

rem

remQu.

I, thou wast borne to be a plague to men.

rem

remRich.

For Gods sake, take away this Captiue Scold.

rem

remPrince.

Nay, take away this scolding Crooke-backe, rather.

rem

remEdw.

Peace wilfull Boy, or I will charme your tongue.

rem

remClar.

Vntutor'd Lad, thou art too malapert.

rem

remPrince.

I know my dutie, you are all vndutifull:

Lasciuious Edward, and thou periur'd George,

And thou mis-shapen Dicke, I tell ye all,

I am your better, Traytors as ye are,

And thou vsurp'st my Fathers right and mine.

rem

remEdw.

Take that, the likenesse of this Rayler here.

Stabs him.

rem

remRich.

Sprawl'st thou? take that, to end thy agonie.

Rich. stabs him.

rem

remClar.

And ther's for twitting me with periurie.

Clar. stabs him.

rem

remQu.

Oh, kill me too.

rem

remRich.

Marry, and shall.

Offers to kill her.

rem

remEdw.

Hold, Richard, hold, for we haue done too much.

rem

remRich.

Why should shee liue, to fill the World with words.

rem

remEdw.

What? doth shee swowne? vse meanes for her recouerie.

rem

remRich.

Clarence excuse me to the King my Brother:

Ile hence to London on a serious matter,

Ere ye come there, be sure to heare some newes.

rem

remCla.

What? what?

rem

remRich.

Tower, the Tower.

Exit.

rem

remQu.

Oh Ned, sweet Ned, speake to thy Mother Boy.

Can'st thou not speake? O Traitors, Murtherers!

They that stabb'd Cæsar, shed no blood at all:

Did not offend, nor were not worthy Blame,

If this foule deed were by, to equall it.

He was a Man; this (in respect) a Childe,

And Men, ne're spend their fury on a Childe.

What's worse then Murtherer, that I may name it?

No, no, my heart will burst, and if I speake,

And I will speake, that so my heart may burst.

Butchers and Villaine, bloody Caniballes,

How sweet a Plant haue you vntimely cropt:

You haue no children (Butchers) if you had,

The thought of them would haue stirr'd vp remorse,

But if you euer chance to haue a Childe,

Looke in his youth to haue him so cut off.

As deathsmen you haue rid this sweet yong Prince.

rem

remKing.

Away with her, go beare her hence perforce.

rem

remQu.

Nay, neuer beare me hence, dispatch me heere:

Here sheath thy Sword, Ile pardon thee my death:

What? wilt thou not? Then Clarence do it thou.

rem

remCla.

By heauen, I will not do thee so much ease.

rem

remQu.

Good Clarence do: Sweet Clarence do thou do it.

This speech is conventionally given to Clarence. rem

remQu.

Did'st thou not heare me sweare I would not do it?

rem

remQu.

I, but thou usest to forswear thy selfe.

'Twas Sin before, but now 'tis Charity.

What wilt yu not? Where is that diuels butcher Richard?

Hard fauor'd Richard? Richard, where art thou?

Thou art not heere; Murther is thy Almes-deed:

Petitioners for Blood, thou ne're put'st backe.

rem

remEd.

Away I say, I charge ye beare her hence.

rem

remQu.

So come to you, and yours, as to this Prince.

Exit Queene.

rem

remEd.

Where's Richard gone.

rem

remCla.

To London all in post, and as I guesse,¹

To make a bloody Supper in the Tower.

rem

remEd.

He's sodaine if a thing comes in his head.

Now march we hence, discharge the common sort

*With Pay and Thankes, and let's away to London,
And see our gentle Queene how well she fares,
By this (I hope) she hath a Sonne for me.*

Exit.

Enter Henry the sixt, and Richard, with the Lieutenant on the Walles.

rem

remRich.

Good day, my Lord, what at your Booke so hard?

rem

remHen.

*I my good Lord: my Lord I should say rather,
Tis sinne to flatter, Good was little better:
'Good Gloster and good Deuill, were alike,
And both preposterous: therefore, not Good Lord.*

rem

remRich.

Sirra, leaue vs to our selues, we must conferre.

rem

remHen.

*So flies the wreaklesse shepherd from the¹² Wolfe:
So first the harmlesse Sheepe doth yeeld his Fleece,
And next his Throate, vnto the Butchers Knife.
What Scene of death hath Rossius now to Acte?*

rem

remRich.

*Suspition alwayes haunts the guilty minde,
The Theefe doth feare each bush an Officer,*

rem

remHen.

*The Bird that hath bin limed in a bush,
With trembling wings misdoubteth euery bush;
And I the haplesse Male to one sweet Bird,
Haue now the fatall Obiect in my eye,
Where my poore yong was lim'd, was caught, and kill'd.*

rem

remRich.

*Why what a peeuish Foole was that of Creet,
That taught his Sonne the office of a Fowle,
And yet for all his wings, the Foole was drown'd.*

rem

¹²y

remHen.

*I Dedaius, my poore Boy Icarus,
Thy Father Minos, that deni'de our course,
The Sunne that sear'd the wings of my sweet Boy.
Thy Brother Edward, and thy Selfe, the Sea
Whose enuious Gulfe did swallow vp his life:
Ah, kill me with thy Weapon, not with words,
My brest can better brooke thy Daggars point,
Then can my eares that Tragicke History.
But wherefore dost thou come? Is't for my Life?*

rem

remRich.

Think'st thou I am an Executioner?

rem

remHen.

*A Persecutor I am sure thou art,
If murthering Innocents be Executing,
Why then thou art an Executioner.*

rem

remRich.

Thy Son I kill'd for his presumption.

rem

remHen.

*Hadst thou bin kill'd, when first yu didst presume,
Thou had'st not liu'd to kill a Sonne of mine:
And thus I prophesie, that many a thousand,
Which now mistrust no parcell of my feare,
And many an old mans sighe, and many a Widdowes,
And many an Orphans water-standing-eye,
Men for their Sonnes, Wiues for their Husbands,
Orphans, for their Parents timeles death,
Shall rue the houre that euer thou was't borne.
The Owle shriek'd at thy birth, an euill signe,
The Night-Crow cry'de, aboding lucklesse time,
Dogs howl'd, and hideous Tempest shook down Trees:
The Rauen rook'd her on the Chimnies top,
And chatt'ring Pies in dismall Discords sung:
Thy Mother felt more then a Mothers paine,
And yet brought forth lesse then a Mothers hope,
To wit, an indigested and deformed lumpe,
Not like the fruit of such a goodly Tree.
Teeth had'st thou in thy head, when thou was't borne,*

*To signifie, thou cam'st to bite the world;
And if the rest be true, which I haue heard,
Thou cam'st*

rem

remRich.

He heare no more:

Dye Prophet in thy speech,

Stabbes him.

For this (among'st the rest) was I ordain'd.

rem

remHen.

I, and for much more slaughter after this,

O God forgiue my sinnes, and pardon thee.

Dyes.

rem

remRich.

What? will the aspiring blood of Lancaster

Sinke in the ground? I thought it would haue mounted.

See how my sword weepes for the poore Kings death.

O may such purple teares be alway shed

From those that wish the downfall of our house.

If any sparke of Life be yet remaining,

Downe, downe to hell, and say I sent thee thither.

Stabs him againe.

I that haue neyther pittie, loue, nor feare,

Indeed 'tis true that Henrie told me of:

For I haue often heard my Mother say,

I came into the world with my Legges forward.

Had I not reason (thinke ye) to make hast,

And seeke their Ruine, that vsurp'd our Right?

The Midwife wonder'd, and the Women cri'de

O Iesus blesse vs, he is borne with teeth,

And so I was, which plainly signified,

That I should snarle, and bite, and play the dogge:

Then since the Heauens haue shap'd my Body so,

Let Hell make crook'd my Minde to answer it.

I haue no Brother, I am like no Brother:

And this world [Loue] which Gray-beards call Diuine,

Be resident in men like one another,

And not in me: I am my selfe alone.
Clarence beware, thou kept'st me from the Light,
But I will sort a pitchy day for thee:
For I will buzze abroad such Prophecies,
That Edward shall be fearefull of his life,
And then to purge his feare, Ile be thy death.
King Henry, and the Prince his Son are gone,
Clarence thy turne is next, and then the rest,
Counting my selfe but bad, till I be best.
Ile throw thy body in another roome,
And Triumph Henry, in thy day of Doome.

Exit.

Flourish. Enter King, Queene, Clarence, Richard, Hastings, Nurse, and Attendants.

rem

remKing.

Once more we sit in Englands Royall Throne,
Re-purchac'd with the Blood of Enemies:
What valiant Foe-men, like to Autumnes Corne,
Haue we mow'd downe in tops of all their pride?
Three Dukes of Somerset, threefold Renowne,
For hardy and vndoubted Champions:
Two Cliffords, as the Father and the Sonne,
And two Northumberlands: two brauer men,
Ne're spurr'd their Coursers at the Trumpets sound.
With them, the two braue Beares, Warwick & Montague,
That in their Chaines fetter'd the Kingly Lyon,
And made the Forrest tremble when they roar'd.
Thus haue we swept Suspition from our Seate,
And made our Footstoole of Security.
Come hither Besse, and let me kisse my Boy:
Yong Ned, for thee, thine Vnckles, and my selfe,
Haue in our Armors watcht the Winters night,
Went all afoote in Summers scalding heate,
That thou might'st repossesse the Crowne in peace,
And of our Labours thou shalt reape the gaine.

rem

remRich.

Ile blast his Haruest, if your head were laid,

*For yet I am not look'd on in the world.
This shoulder was ordain'd so thicke, to heaue,
And heaue it shall some waight, or breake my backe,
Worke thou the way, and that shalt execute.*

rem

remKing.

*Clarence and Gloster, loue my louely Queene,
And kis your Princely Nephew Brothers both.*

rem

remCla.

*The duty that I owe vnto your Maiesty,
I Seale vpon the lips of this sweet Babe.
This speech is conventionally given to Queen Elizabeth. rem
remCla.*

Thanke Noble Clarence, worthy brother thanks.

rem

remRich.

*And that I loue the tree from¹³ whence yu sprang'st:
Witnesse the louing kisse I giue the Fruite,
To say the truth, so Iudas kist his master,
And cried all haile, when as he meant all harme.*

rem

remKing.

*Now am I seated as my soule delights,
Hauing my Countries peace, and Brothers loues.*

rem

remCla.

*What will your Grace haue done with Margaret, Reynard her Father, to the King of France
Hath pawn'd the Sicils and Ieruselem,
And hither haue they sent it for her ransome.*

*Away with her, and waft her hence to France:
And now what rests, but that we spend the time
With stately Triumphes, mirthfull Comicke shewes,
Such as befits the pleasure of the Court.
Sound Drums and Trumpets, farwell sowre annoy,
For heere I hope begins our lasting ioy.*
